MACARTHUR PLEDGES FULL U. S. AID TO AUSTRALIANS

ALLIED PLANS FOR OFFENSIVE TAKING SHAPE

Operations Eventually Will Carry War Directly to Japs in Pacific.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 26—The early outline of the offensive operations which sooner or later will carry the war to Japan is beginning to take shape here in reports from the vast Pacific-Asiatic battle area telling of increased allied activity in India and Australia and of American operations far west of Hawaii.

Indications, in the opinion of military and naval strategists, are that when the big push finally comes it will lash out from four main quarters — China, India, Australia and Hawaii — with the purpose of putting so much pressure on Japan at so many points simultaneously that her scattered and divided forces will be unable to resist effectively.

The great problem now facing the allies in preparation for this offensive, strategists said, is still one of time and supplies — the problem of getting enough fully equipped troops in action before the enemy can consolidate his territorial conquests, or exploit his supply of raw materials for arms production purposes.

Task Is Hard

The formidable character of the United Nations' task can not be overemphasized, these authorities stressed, but they noted with guarded satisfaction that it was being attacked energetically from all angles throughout the farflung Pacific theatre. Among the most important evidences of progress they listed the following:

1. The increasing flow of supplies to General Douglas MacArthur's command. This already has enabled his forces, in cooperation with the navy, to deal smashing — perhaps crippling — blows to one great Japanese invasion threat massing off New Guinea, and to prepare for whatever subsequent thrust may be aimed against Australia itself.

2. The accelerated preparations for the defense of India, including the recently-announced Washington decision to send a supply mission there. With the loss of the Burma road, India became the chief route for moving munitions to China so that her defenders now guard not only Britain's wealthiest colonly but also China's lifeline.

Loss of Island Serious

In this connection, strategists deplored the loss of the Andaman islands in the Bay of Bengal to the Japanese, as announced yesterday in New Delhi. The islands commanded the approaches to Calcutta, most convenient port of entry for China-bound shipments, and the islands' loss was viewed here as meaning that supplies now must be moved through other ports, probably those on the Arabian sea, and

TRAFFIC ACCIDENT KILLS KENTON YOUTH

Victim Riding on Running Board Caught in Crash.

Special to The Star

KENTON, March 26 — John Pearl Evans, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Evans, died at 7 a. m. today in Antonio hospital of injuries suffered in a traffic accident at about 10:30 last night.

Evans was riding on the left running board of a car driven by Oliver Barrett when the Barrett car careened into a parked car owned by C. Lenhart of Kenton. As the two cars collided young Evans was caught between the side of the Barrett car and the left front fender of the Lenhart auto, crushing his left leg.

Leg Crushed

Officials at Antonio hospital reported that Evans' leg was almost completely severed just above the knee. Loss of blood was blamed for his death.

Police officials investigating the accident said that Barrett and Evans had just stopped at the home of Marjorie Newell to let her out. Evans took Miss Newell to the door of her home and returned to the car, telling Barrett that he would ride on the running board until they reached the home of Katherine Anstine, who lived about two blocks away.

Rites Saturday

Both Evans and Barrett are members of the junior class of Kenton High school. Earlier in the evening they had attended a meeting of the Junior Hi-Y together.

Surviving with the parents are the following grandparents: Mr. and Mrs. John Predmore of east of Kenton, and Pearl Evans of North Lewisburg. Funeral services will be held Saturday at 2 p. m. at the Schindenwolf Funeral Home with Rev. A. A. Ames officiating. Burial will be made in the Wolf Creek cemetery.

UNION LEADERS WARN AGAINST HOME "WAR"

Fear Measure Will Bring Industrial Strife.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 26 — William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and Philip Murray, CIO chief, jointly advised congress today against passing labor legislation which might start an "undeclared war among ourselves" and divide the nation into groups fighting each other.

In statements prepared for presentation before the house naval committee, they declared a bill to suspend the closed shop and extra pay for overtime in war plants was dictated by labor's enemies.

"I charge that the sponsors and supporters of this bill are now waging an undeclared war against President Roosevelt, and against the workers of America who believe in the policies of his administration," said Green in his statement.

Murray declared the naval committee had the responsibility of "correcting misinformation that has been sponsored and fostered by anti-labor groups . . . and of rebuking once and for all those in public life and in private life who are attempting to disrupt and divide our nation into groups."

No Time for Squabble

The American Federation of Labor head told the committee that "we cannot afford in the nation's crisis to take time out to fight another and undeclared war among ourselves here in America."

Said Murray:

"This is not the time for any patriotic American citizen to malign or spread misinformation about labor or to divide this nation into group's fighting each other instead of our common axis enemies."

Organized labor has started its own wire-your-congressman campaign to counter the flood of mail and telegraphs for suspension of the 40-hour week, senators reported today.

Preceded by what some senators described as an "avalanche" of pro-labor mail, AFL President William Green and CIO President Philip Murray prepared to testify before the house naval affairs committee against a bill by Rep. Smith (D-Va). The bill would suspend the 40-hour week, eliminate the closed shop in war industries and place a ceiling of 6 per cent on war contract profits.

CIO Unions Active

Chairman Van Nuys (D-Ind) of the senate judiciary committee, before which several labor bills are pending, told reporters he received 50 telegrams from CIO unions in his state in one day. All urged him to vote against any changes in present labor laws, he said.

Van Nuys said he was not convinced, nevertheless, he should

VICTORY SEEN BY CHURCHILL

It Will Be Our Own Fault If We Lose, Prime Minister Declares.

By The Associated Press

Tempestuous aerial blows ranging from Arctic Murmansk to Germany's industrial Ruhr valley and the white cliffs of Dover were reported today as Prime Minister Winston Churchill sounded a rare note of optimism with the declaration that the allies "cannot lose this war except through our own fault."

Churchill acknowledged, however, that the grim battle of the Atlantic "upon which at all times our power to live and carry on the war effort depends" had again taken a turn for the worse after a marked brightening in the last five or six months.

Addressing the annual meeting of the central council of the National Union of Conservative and Unionist associations, his political party, the prime minister said:

"I cannot offer any guarantee that we are at the end of our misfortunes.

"It would be foolish for us not to be prepared for further heavy blows, but just as last year I warned you that we could not have successes uncheckered by reverses, so now in 1942 we need not expect to have reverses unrelieved by successes."

Year Brings Changes

"A year ago," Churchill related, "we were alone. Now three of the greatest nations in the world are sworn to us in close alliance and are fighting at our side in all their growing power.

"Whereas a year ago all we could do was to fight stubbornly and doggedly on as we had done when we were alone in former

AT LEAST 29 MEN KILLED IN QUARRY BLAST

Death Toll May Go to 32; Dynamite Explosion Felt 50 Miles.

By The Associated Press

EASTON, Pa., March 26—Hundreds of pounds of dynamite exploded prematurely at limestone quarry of the Lehigh Portland Cement Co. four miles north of Easton today, killing at least 29 men and shaking the countryside for miles around.

Investigators said the death toll may reach 32.

The blast was felt as far away as 50 miles. Windows were shattered in homes and buildings in an 18-mile area.

School Wrecked

Fourteen school children from a school a mile north of the quarry were brought to an Easton hospital.

The entire front of the school building was ripped away, investigators said. One of the two teachers also was injured. About 60 pupils were in the building.

The blast was heard for miles around and was so severe that doors were jarred open in Allentown, 18 miles away.

Many buildings and homes in the area were damaged.

G. C. Bachman, timekeeper for the company, said preparations were being made for setting off a major charge and that 10 to 12 men normally were used in such an operation.

He said all men in or around the quarry were either killed or injured.

The plant, located approximately five miles north of Easton, employs about 200 workers. No plant buildings are near the quarry, however, Bachman said.

Trucks Tossed About

Several hundred pounds of dynamite were being placed in the quarry.

Pilots of two airplanes which flew over the quarry said upon their return to the Easton airport that they saw trucks that had been parked near the quarry tossed helter and skelter.

All available emergency ambulances and doctors were rushed to the scene from Easton and Phillipsburg, N. J., across the Delaware river from Easton.

Windows in stores and homes were shattered in Easton, Allentown and Bethlehem.

Pebbles hurled into the air by the force of the blast fell in Bulztown, on the outskirts of Bethlehem, nine miles from the scene.

The blast was reported heard in Norristown, about 50 miles south of Easton, and the Plainfield, N. J., area, about 30 miles distant.

Fair Rent Committee Meeting Scheduled

Marion's fair rent committee, appointed last fall by Mayor Snare but which has had few problems before it for consideration, will meet tomorrow night in the mayor's office to outline the policy it will follow in controlling rents in Marion during its current expansion of population.

Members of the committee are Harry J. Barnhrat, J. J. Stafford, Karl W. Schell, Mrs. A. M. Hutchinson, Carl Fisher, Leo Patton and George Turner.

Army Officers, Contractors Push Ordnance Plant Work

Three War Department Offices and Two Contracting Firms Busy at Scattered Offices in City.

Key men who will guide the the phases of work with which construction and later the operation of the Scioto Ordnance Plant are gradually settling down to work in earnest following several days of work under the difficulties and handicaps of finding office space, assembling office equipment and arranging telephone and other vital service.

Three war department offices and local headquarters for two contracting concerns are humming with activity. These offices, the men in charge of them and the phases of work with which they are concerned are:

Ordnance department, U. S. Army. This department is represented in Marion by Lieut. Col. John Huling Jr., who is expected to be named soon as commanding officer of the Scioto Ordnance Plant. The ordnance department representatives have many duties in connection with the construction work now under way but its chief concern will be to administer the contract for the operation of the plant. The plant, it is understood, will be operated by a private corporation under contract with the war department, with the local ordnance department representatives issuing production schedules to the corporation, inspecting the product and accepting the product in the name of the government. Since the war department will own the plant and the land on which it is located, the commanding officer and his personnel also will be in charge of the property. This department's offices are above the Musser Floral Co. on South State street.

Col. Huling's staff includes Capt. Frank Klapp, Chief Clerk James C. Johnson and Harold DuPrez, administrative assistant.

Corps of Engineers, Fifth Corps Area of the War Department. This branch of the war department is charged with the task of acquiring land for the plant and to arrange for its construction. At present, Capt. R. W. Lockridge, who recently came here from the Ravenna plant, is in charge of the engineers. Their dealings are primarily with two contracting firms which have established offices here — The Hunkin-Conkey Construction Co., a Cleveland construction company, and Holabird & Root, architect-engineers, with headquarters in Chicago, which together are handling the task of laying out and building the plant. The corps of engineers offices are at 160½ East Center street over the state-federal employment office.

On the staff besides Capt. Lockridge are Capt. H. D. L. Vanbockern, Capt. Roland P. Campbell; Joe Borer, field auditor; Lloyd L. Ayers, chief materials inspector, and Ken Priddy, assistant field auditor. Capt. Campbell today was promoted to captaincy from the rank of first lieutenant. He has been in active duty about a year, was graduated from DePauw university in 1933 and from Harvard business school in 1935.

The Hunkin-Conkey Construction Co. of Cleveland. This company has a skeleton organization of some 100 persons already on the job, and its employment is expected to rise sharply as work progresses. B. J. Bartholomew is general superintendent here, M. E. Hawk is assistant superintendent, C. W. Eberhardt is general purchasing agent and other men holding key positions with the company include C. L. Logue, O. E. Norris and C. B. Brainard. This company has offices in Hotel Harding and also in a large building at the southeast corner of Main and George streets.

Holabird & Root has a sizeable organization in Marion with headquarters in rooms at Hotel Harding and in a large room at the Schwinger building on North Prospect street. Its key men here include J. L. Burgin, resident partner; V. O. McClure, chief of civil and structural engineers; Myron T. Jones, engineer in charge of water and sewers; [illegible] O. J. Marshall of Ohio University, industrial engineer; surveying; Ray [illegible] electrical engineer; [illegible] and Arthur [illegible]

KEROSENE IS FATAL TO CHILD

Green Camp Infant Swallows Fuel, Dies Short Time Later in Hospital.

Gary Mabrey, 16-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert C. Mabrey of three miles southwest of Green Camp, died last night at 7 in City hospital from the effects of swallowing coal oil.

A hemorrhage of the lung was the immediate cause of death, according to the attending physician.

The child found a half-filled pint can of coal oil while playing on the back porch about 3 p. m. and had swallowed a small quantity in the few minutes his mother was indoors.

Physician Called

Mrs. Mabrey was alone and could not reach the child's father, an employe in the Erie shops. A physician was called by telephone and prescribed a neutralizing treatment.

When the father returned from work he and the child's grandfather, Harry L. Beaver of west of Green Camp brought the child to the physician's office. The physician ordered the child to the hospital immediately. The child apparently strangled on the coal oil and inhaled some, which brought on a swelling of the lungs and the hemorrhage, the physician said.

Gary was born in the City hospital on Nov. 16, 1940. The father is a native of Greenup, Ky., and the mother is the former Ava Lois Beaver of Green Camp.

Rites Saturday

Surviving with the parents are a 4-month-old sister, Maxine Lois, the grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Beaver and Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Mabrey of west of Green Camp and two great-grandparents, Mrs. Clara Petty and W. W. Beaver, both of Green Camp.

The funeral will be conducted Saturday at 1 p. m. in the Evangelical and Reformed church west of Green Camp by Rev. Robert G. Diller. Burial will be made in Green Camp cemetery. Friends may call at the Merle H. Hughes funeral home on Mt. Vernon avenue tonight and at the home of Mrs. Petty after 10 a. m. Friday.

Gen. Stilwell, Who Leads Chinese, Fighting Soldier

At 59 He Still Can Go 20 Hours a Day; He's a Trusted Friend of China.

By DANIEL DE LUCE

MANDALAY, March 26 — (Wide World) — A man of 59 who can keep on the jump 20 hours a day, outmatch a tough Chinese warlord and turn an old-fashioned English cuswword into the ancient tongue of the flowery kingdom without batting an eyelash is somebody to conjure with even in this strange land.

When you add these attributes to an aggressive spirit, a sharp decisive mind and a talent for soldering in theory as well as in fact you begin to get a glimmering idea of Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, chief of staff in the China war theater under Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and commander of United States forces in China, India and Burma. They've spoken of him already in this part of the world as one whom future historians may class with the American general, Frederick Townsend Ward, and the British general, Charles George Gordon, who helped the Chinese emperor crush the Taiping rebellion, China's greatest civil war, between 1850 and 1864.

But still Stilwell is the kind of man who would snort at such comparisons and turn his mind to the job at hand.

Keeps Eye on "Tigers"

That job, it has been suggested, may be to clear the bases from which to bomb Japan in a United Nations offensive. He is particularly interested in the American volunteer group, the force of "Tigers" which has been the Chinese government's airforce operating in Burma and Yunnan since last December.

The long-rumored incorporation into the U. S. army of this group of fliers, trained chiefly by the United States army and navy, operating on contract with the Chinese government, may be begun soon. In any case they would be invaluable to Stilwell.

Stilwell, born March 19, 1883 in Palatka, Fla., is a man who hates hemming and hawing when a situation is understood and a decision to be made. He doesn't waste words and he appears to have no illusions about the size of the job ahead.

"A hell of a tough spot," was his summation of the war in Burma when he and his staff arrived in February.

"Uncle Joe," as his men call him, rarely makes speeches, but his farewell to the Seventh division when he left has already become a United States army classic. After thanking briefly and sincerely the men for their loyalty and devotion to duty, he added, apropos of his own advancement to command of the Third army corps:

"The higher a monkey climbs on a pole the more you can see of his backside."

Biography of Soldier

Stilwell's biography in outline is the biography of a soldier. He went to West Point at 17 was graduated in 1904, commissioned a second lieutenant of infantry and before the World war served in the Philippines, at the presidio of Monterey, California, and as an instructor at the United States military academy.

He sailed for France in December, 1917, and was on observation duty with the British near Nuyon until March, 1918, when he was detailed to duty with the military intelligence division of the general staff. He returned to the United States in August, 1919.

From 1920 to 1923 he was in China as a Chinese language student. Returning to the United States he attended the infantry school at Fort Benning, Ga., and the command and general staff school at Fort Leavenworth, Kas.

He returned to China in 1926 for a short stay, and after further duty in the United States, was detailed in the summer of 1932 as military attache at the American embassy at Peiping, serving there until 1939.

He became a brigadier general that year when he was assigned to command the Third infantry brigade at Fort Sam Houston, Texas. Later he was promoted to major general and given the job of whipping drafted men into fighting shape at Fort Ord, Calif., His promotion to lieutenant general came when he was at Cairo, Egypt, enroute to China.

The Chinese welcomed him, of course, He had long championed united resistance to Japanese aggression and Chiang Kai-shek was his friend. Moreover, he was one of the few foreign generals the Chinese leader would be expected to entrust with the lives of his veteran fighters.

Chinese Like Him

Chinese generals who knew him only by reputation liked him from the start.

On trips to the front he outwalked most of them. They looked with admiration on his stubby figure with the legs of an Arizona cow-puncher, his eagle nose and close cropped black hair shot with gray. They liked his disinclination to take it easy. His energy was something to marvel at.

Stilwell's old command, the Seventh division, specialized in experimenting with anti-tank defense work, and the Chinese forces under his command will undoubtedly put into effect Stilwell's ideas of nullifying enemy armored attacks.

His headquarters group include United States officers who speak Chinese and men who are specialists in aviation, artillery and mechanized equipment.

He favors hitting at the enemy before he can hit back, and he has been known for a long time to relish the chance of leading the Chinese troops with whose fighting qualities he is so intimately acquainted.

dentally pull the trigger," Dr. Mooney testified.

The coroner said that an autopsy determined that the bullet that entered Mrs. Raver's back was a hollow-nosed one that plowed through her heart, while the one fired at close range in front entered her left lung and lodged under her left shoulder blade.

The coroner's testimony was finished this morning. He was followed on the stand by Dr. N. C. Schroeder of Kenton, who conducted the autopsy. Dr. Schroeder testified as to the wounds.

Officials Testify

Police Chief Clarence Sheldon told of Raver's statement admitting the shooting and Justice Roy Haudenshield, before whom Raver was taken for preliminary hearing, testified that Raver admitted his guilt.

Testimony of Sheriff R. R. Clark concerned the shorthand and typewritten statements signed by Raver. Miss Mary Scott, court stenographer, also testified. Mrs. John Beltz, who lives in an adjoining apartment to the Ravers', said that as far as she knew, there was no trouble between Mr. and Mrs. Raver.

goes into the yard, from which the duck never strays. Donald lays flat, bill on the ground, wanting to be petted.

Likes To Be Fondled

Donald likes to be carried, likes to be held. She likes it too, when she is permitted to accompany Charlene and her sister Patricia, 5, to the grocery, or downtown. On these adventures she waddles along beside the girls, her gait somewhat impeded by weight, clucking contentedly.

Every morning Donald goes to the kitchen door and clucks to arouse the girls. If they don't come to the door at once the cluck changes to an angry "Quack!"

Donald's "egg a day" has to be hunted for. She likes to hide her produce in the shrubbery or in a far corner of the yard.

Last Sunday Charlene took five of Donald's eggs to Zeb Stout, chairman of the Kiwanis club's committee on prizes for the annual egg hunt, as a gesture of appreciation.

At Christmas time she wrapped duck eggs in holiday tissue and presented them to her school and music teachers, her grandparents, and her friends.

This year Charlene and Patricia are going to the egg hunt and they hope to come home with a companion for Donald.

But Donald isn't Donald Donald's Donna.

Hyacinths, imported from Holland, were scarce last year and this year are practically nil, Marion florists said.

They suggest calla lilies, tulips, jonquils, azaleas, calceolaria—a showy pouch-shaped flower—hydrangeas and roses and assure Marion shoppers of a plentiful stock of cut flowers and the fancy flowers for corsages.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Labor's Public Relations Problem

THE classic story of public relations tells how John D. Rockefeller was changed from a wicked capitalist to a benign philanthropist by shifting the emphasis on his fortune from getting to giving. Perhaps what organized labor needs most at the moment is a publicity expert.

Walter Lippmann thinks the leaders of organized labor are feeling the heat of an inflamed public opinion because they haven't formally gone to war yet. They are on the same hot spot the leaders of the automobile industry would be on right now if they had continued to insist on doing business as usual. The directness of the Lippmann argument is refreshing. It's not the 40-hour week that matters, in other words, but the insistence of labor's spokesmen that war production mustn't be permitted to interfere with the 40-hour week. All the emphasis is on getting n-plenty while the getting's good—and the public is beginning to throw the barbs it reserves for the over-greedy.

Actually, of course, organized labor is not guilty of inordinate greed. For every labor leader and follower who is hoping to make a financial killing, a thousand others would be willing to work for nothing if they had to. The war means something a lot bigger than time and a half to them. But no one hears from them; they aren't represented, even though they constitute an overwhelming majority.

They are victims of the same tragic generalization that has cursed management, though in recent years management has done a fair job of lifting the curse with a sound policy of public relations. It no longer stands by helplessly, for instance, while blabbermouth politicians try to smear it with the culpable practices of the exceptional business that lets itself get overgreedy. Management has learned that it is good business to let the public look at its admirable side—and to make sure there is an admirable side to look at. Organized labor, equally dependent on public goodwill, needs to give more attention to its public relations job. Time and a half for war production is not the kind of reputation it needs for the long pull.

Well Spoken

GEN. MacARTHUR'S words on censorship—or the words put into his mouth—are well spoken. The United States will follow a policy of giving the people the truth about what is happening in the southwest Pacific, the general promises.

The reason is that free people can deliver their best effort when they know what needs to be done. Such an assumption couldn't be given a second thought in Germany, for instance, where the people are neither free nor trusted. The totalitarian way is to tell the people what to do, not to tell them why.

There may be times when some Americans will wish fretfully they weren't being told quite so much. Bad news apparently lies ahead from the operations under Gen. MacArthur's command; bad news from Bataan peninsula is virtually a certainty.

But perhaps the most important British discovery in the war so far is that a tradition of popular government can be exposed successfully to bad news; in fact, the British have seemed sometimes to thrive on it. In view of the fact no news, good or bad, can be suppressed permanently, it might turn out that the free people's capacity for taking the bitter with the sweet will be tremendously important.

New Bombers for Japan

OBSERVERS who have tried to keep abreast of the light for aerial supremacy seem to agree on certain points, of special interest, in the light of reports that Japan has "developed" a new heavy bomber.

Japan, say the observers, has not made any contributions to development of airplanes. It has copied successfully, but it has not originated anything. The new heavy bombers reported probably are the result of copying the Flying Fortresses which represent the principal contribution of the United States to aviation development since the beginning of the war.

The dive bomber, most publicized of Germany's war planes, was developed by the United States after the World war. The fast pursuit plane was Great Britain's post-war contribution. The Schneider Trophy races, in which the world's fastest planes were entered, were expensive, however, and Great Britain discontinued them in 1931. At that time, it already had developed a plane capable of flying 340 miles an hour, however.

The key to aerial supremacy, however, is ability to produce the needed planes in volume after they have been developed, coupled with ability to fly them. Italy has developed exceptionally fast planes, but cannot produce them in quantity nor fly them advantageously. It is on these scores that the United States can surpass all other contenders, certainly including the Japanese. It is going to make heavy bombers by the thousands; its pilots already have demonstrated what they can do when they have the planes.

News Behind the News

Mr. Hillman's Dejection Explained: He's Out in the Cold.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, March 26—Ex-Secretary of War Labor Sidney Hillman quietly slipped his resignation on Donald Nelson's overcrowded desk a few days back as the outgrowth of his peculiar inner personal situation.

It is true, Mr. Nelson's new production campaign has run into hazy weather because it was based on new labor-management committees for each plant—a setup which was apparently misinterpreted by both management and labor to some extent, as a socializing move rather than a war effort, despite Mr. Nelson's protestations.

But all around Mr. Nelson's WPB do not connect Mr. Hillman's dejection with this event. At head of Nelson's labor division, Mr. Hillman might have contributed the labor angle to this campaign, an angle which revived memories of the Murray plan for industrial councils. But Hillman and Nelson associates imply that—far from being a result of bad advice—Mr. Hillman's low spirits were due to the fact no one has been asking him for any advice.

Mr. Roosevelt' special labor committee of three AFL'ers and three CIO'ers has been meeting frequently at the White House with Mr. Hillman not present. He was not invited, and lofty CIO circles claim CIO President Phil Murray suggested he stay away.

It just seems nobody loves him. AFL feels the same way. He has been working in the middle, between these two forces, since the days of the original Roosevelt advisory council on national defence. When that ran out, he was urged to co-head of OPM with Knudsen.

Now Mr Knudsen has a lieutenant generalship, but Mr Hillman is only head of one of the six divisions of Mr. Nelson's WPB and Nelson had apparently forgotten his telephone number. Even to a less sensitive person than Mr. Hillman, this would seem to constitute a cold shoulder.

Earnings

Basis of government policy on inflation, rationing, and taxes is the assumption that "everyone is making more money." It is becoming increasingly clear this premise is false. Some people and some corporations are making a great deal more money than before the war, but a great many people and many old leading corporations are making less.

The shocking testimony showing the Jack & Heintz company making 22 per cent on an airplane starter and throwing money away like John Maynard Keynes, helps to further the popular illusion that war contractors are getting rich.

The biggest of them, concerns like U. S. Steel and General Motors, are in fact getting poor. Their earnings are down, their stock price is sharply down from pre-Dec. 7 days.

Others like American Locomotive and Baldwin (which earned nothing during the depression) are enjoying an earnings bonanza. These bonanzas are so rich the overall figures of earnings, collected by the government (which are not up to the minute in registering what has happened since the war began) show increases and mislead government economists into believing "everyone is making more money."

Take a specific industry, the first big industry to feel the weight of war change (but not the last)—automobiles. Certainly no one connected with autos now is making more money.

There are 95,296 dealers who are now running bowling alleys, used car lots and what not. They and their 1,310,000 employes cannot be accused to be making more money. The thousands of tourist trade people along the highways of the country will not make more money, nor will filling station proprietors, tire dealers.

Vacant stores can be found in every block of the busiest parts of Fifth avenue and Broadway in New York to stand witness that the shopkeeping class of business in non-booming communities is not making more money. Nor are people in the financial district.

Yet shipyards, small iron works, contractors in boom centers, real estate speculators in some localities are making tremendous profits.

People

So also with people. Farmer and union labor are two class groups whose statistics suggest are getting larger incomes. But there are no statistics for clerks, white collar workers, including government employees, teachers, doctors, dentists, taxi drivers, soldiers in the army, sailors in the navy—all of whom, and many more, are getting the same or much less salary due to taxes and prices.

To these must be added the untold, unenumerated unemployed thrust out of work in small manufacturing businesses, or those who will be thrust out when rationing is extended as promised.

Thus the problem of stopping inflation, of curtailing buying power, of taxing "excess earnings" is not the overall problem which the government has assumed it to be in its initial economic war policies, but specific problems affecting only specific groups of people.

Today and Tomorrow

Plan Proposed To Deal with "Sixth Column" Rumors and Doubts.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

AGAINST the "sixth columnists," those who spread rumors and doubts, the President cannot be effective merely by calling attention to them at his White House press conference. For rumors grow when information is lacking; when people do not feel that they know what is going on, they quickly believe any tall story they hear. It is, therefore, the public feeling of not being in the know which is the heart of the trouble.

This trouble cannot be remedied by the Office of Facts and Figures or by any other form of administration publicity. For government publicity, however well done, has one incurable defect: it is essentially a handout. A free people will not give full faith and credit to information of this kind until it has been subjected to some sort of independent check. The administration, testifying in its own behalf through its publicity services cannot hope to have the testimony accepted confidently as true evidence unless that testimony has been tested by cross-examination.

The machinery for checking the government publicity exists. It is congress, and any one who is looking seriously for the practical and effective way to combat the sixth column must look for it in the relation between congress and the administration. Congress, not feeling itself to be in the know, is certainly one of the great sources, even for the press and radio, of the rumors and doubts. If congress felt that it was in the know, it would be by all odds the greatest force for dealing with rumors and doubts. Through the correspondence and the personal contacts between the congressmen and their constituents in every corner of the country, there pass all the rumors and the doubts, the half-truths and the falsehoods, the misunderstandings and the planted lies.

Congress' Part

Make it possible for the congressmen to feel that they are properly informed, to feel that they have the means to check and to cross-examine the administration publicity, and the feeling of confidence in congress will be passed on to the people. This is another way of saying that we enjoy representative government, and that publicity experts can never be an effective substitute for it. In fact, publicity experts, public relations counsellors, who have not grasped this fundamental truth, are bound to make a bash of government publicity. For they are ignoring, or vainly attempting to supersede, the normal and deeply established means of communication between the people and the executive.

To say this is not, however, to say that congress is now organized properly to play its indispensable part in the war. On the contrary, congress is much the most inefficiently organized part of the government today.

Thus, for example, congress is filled with the conviction that there ought to be unity of command and the closest integration of the armed services. Then look at how congress itself is organized in these matters. There are two naval committees, one in each house, and there are two army committees, one in each house, and there are two appropriations committees, one in each house, and there are two foreign affairs committees, one in each house.

Congress is filled also with the conviction that war production should be conducted according to an over-all plan, carefully adjusted to our resources and our strategical requirements, and directed by Mr. Nelson's organization. Then look at congress itself, and see how many separate committees there are examining bits and pieces of our war production: the Truman committee, the Tolan committee, two labor committees, the judiciary committees, the rules committees, and all the military and naval committees.

Coordination Urged

How can congress hope to obtain a correct picture, in true perspective and continuously, in this chaos of committees? If there is to be unity of direction and concerted action in the executive branch, is it not high time there was some of the same thing in the co-ordinate branch? How can 10 or 15 separate committees, many of them led by prima donnas, hope to give congress and the country coherent and reliable information about the conduct of the war?

As it is now organized, congress is not only incapable of informing itself and the country properly; congress is a very bad influence on the conduct of the war. For one thing, all these separate committees exercising their right to call before them executive officials, cause a frightful drain of time and energy. How many times a week do men like Mr. Nelson, Mr. Forrestal and Mr. Patterson have to drop their work and ap-

Training Our Fliers

National Program Is To Start When They're Boys.

(For the first time since the Wright brothers first flew at Kitty Hawk, N. C., more than 38 years ago, the United States is evolving a national air training plan teaching into elementary schools, high schools and colleges. Its impact on the war effort is described by Wide World Aviation Editor Devon Francis in concluding his observations on a five-week tour of air training fields.)

By DEVON FRANCIS
Wide World Aviation Editor

NEW YORK, March 26—The day when American aviation just growed, like Topsy, is past. In its stead is developing a nationally integrated plan which should have far-reaching results.

As between warplanes and pilots, the production of pilots to fight a global war is by far the bigger, more meticulous task.

In a cable from Melbourne last month Sir Keith Murdock advised the London Daily Mail that the British had lost many fighting planes in the mere act of getting them off the ground at Singapore because "the gallant lads who were in them had never properly learnt to fly such machines."

If is to keep gallant American lads from needlessly sacrificing their lives and the planes under their command that agencies of the civil government and the army now is evolving a national air training plan.

The armed services insist that every aviation cadet winning his wings be a competent, skillful airman. The national program, which for years has been suffering birth pains, is directed for the moment only to that end.

Unquestionably it will have its effect on private and commercial aviation when peace comes.

The Germans beat us to the punch.

As early as 1936 the Nazis were operating 60 schools, each graduating 1,000 fliers a year. Teenage youngsters learned flying in gliders. At the "model" German glider school in Hornberg, near Stuttgart, 120 pilots were being graduated every six weeks before the war began.

Model building in the elementary schools was a government project.

Italy followed a similar program.

Latently, but with a vengeance, the United States has set out to catch up.

The office of education, in the department of the interior, has begun to do in this country for boys in short pants what the Nazis and the Fascists—and, for that matter, the Russians—have done for theirs. Aiding the effort is the air youth division of the National Aeronautic association, a non-governmental group.

The Boy Scouts of America have instituted instruction in model building and airplane design.

In 1939 the civil aeronautics authority, with an apprehensive glance at Capitol Hill, began a pilot-training program described as having anything but a military purpose. Now Secretary Stimson has issued a general directive that civilian pilot training at government expense shall be the pre-cadet training service for the duration.

That program, known as CPTP, serves the same purpose here that glider flying does abroad.

On Jan. 1 this country had more than 100,000 licensed and non-licensed pilots. This group is far from being complete. A lot of kicking is inevitable in a democracy where men speak their minds. Graduates of CPTP who sit around twiddling their thumbs complain that the army and navy have made no attempt to utilize the civilian pilot pool of which they are a part.

The contract school operators who train CPTP students complain: (1) That the government has not instituted instructor courses fast enough to supply the army's primary training centers, and (2) that the army is wrecking its own program by stopping almost all private flying.

But, as President Roosevelt says, we are on our way.

Not even the organized youth of the Axis powers can laugh off the growing junior air reserve devised by Gill Robb Wilson, president of the National Aeronautic association.

Testimony before the house appropriations committee in February that of 70,000 civilian pilots trained through the CAA, 21,000 had gone into the armed services probably doesn't amuse the Axis either.

The CAA is going to train boys as pilots for two years before they are subject to the draft.

This national integrated plan will produce—indeed, already is producing—pilots of superior caliber for the war effort. When American airmen, their coveted wings won, go out to fight, they know they have had as good a course of instruction as the world provides.

Individuals, as nations, unite harmoniously on the basis of justice, and this is accomplished when self is lost in Love — or God's own plan of salvation.
—Mary Baker Eddy

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Saturday, March 26, 1932.

Henry M Leland, 89, pioneer of the automobile industry, died in Detroit.

T. J Murphy arrived in Marion to take over his duties as the new superintendent of the Erie's Kent division. Mr Murphy, who came here from Salamanca, N. Y., where he had been superintendent of the Allegheny and Bradford divisions, had been in the service of the Erie 35 years.

Mrs Ula McNamara, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. G McNamara of South Vine street, was home from Ohio Wesleyan university for the Easter vacation.

Mr and Mrs. Clyde Burnside and son Jimmy of Parlen street and Mrs C. M Lee of East Center street returned from a visit with friends in Detroit.

Mr. and Mrs. H W Kile of Cambridge O., were visiting Mr. and Mrs. F D. Crawford of Pearl street.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Sunday, March 26, 1922.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. C. D. O'Keeffe of Youngstown. Mrs. O'Keeffe was formerly Miss Marguerite Hanley of Marion.

The grocery store of Ray Reidenbaugh at Prospect and George streets was entered by burglars for the second time within less than a week. Merchandise was stolen. The other burglary occurred the preceding Monday night.

Mrs. Joseph G Rolston, 54, died at her home on West Columbia street.

Delegates from Columbus, Galion, Mansfield, Bucyrus, Tiffin and other localities in Ohio attended a one-day convention of the Associated Bible Students held in the I. O. O. F. temple here. W. A. Thrutchley of England, principal speaker, had as his subject, "Christ's Kingdom is At Hand." He said, "Present-day distress of nations is one of the very things that Jesus said would exist at the time for the establishment of His Kingdom."

Speaker Sam Rayburn rang the school bell and swept the buildings to help pay for his education at East Texas Normal school.

It's Australian Slang, Which We May Expect Our Soldiers To Bring Back from the Wars.

By DAMON RUNYON

OUR soldiers will probably come back from Australia loaded up with what is now commonly called Australian slang, though it is not Australian in origin at all. We notice that war correspondents with our troops down under are already announcing that the Australians are saying the Americans are fair dinkum. That means okay, or all right.

Usually, the expression is just dinkum, the fair being dropped as superfluous. Masters the so-called Australian slang, which once had quite a vogue in sporting circles on the Pacific coast, generally clip off some of the words in the interest of brevity. For instance, rory more meaning a door, comes down to just "rory." The shovel and broom, which means board and room, becomes shovel.

This slang is the rhyming slang of the English underworld of a hundred years or more ago. It is the simplest of all slang, because the key to the whole business is a rhyme. It probably got to Australia generations back through the ticket-of-leave men who were sent there in the old days from England. It struck the fancy of the Australians, and at one time was as generally employed as the pig latin of young Americans of another day.

TO what extent the rhyming slang now prevails in Australia we do not know, but probably it is limited to a comparatively few expressions among certain classes.

The American prizefighters who went over before the first World war brought back fragments to San Francisco, whence it spread all the west coast. Jack Kearns, former manager of Jack Dempsey, who took Eddie McGoorty, Billy Watson, Jimmy Clabby and other gladiators to Australia could almost make a set speech in the slang.

It is found in all old English slang dictionaries, though the Australians elaborated on it considerably. We used to be considered something of an authority on the slang, but many of the expressions have long since slipped our memory. Occasionally, we revert to it to convey a secret message in company to the storm and stress, otherwise the cheese and kisses. She has a keen ear for the lingo. The storm and stress is the wife. The cheese and kisses is the mister. So they mean the same thing.

A twist and twirl, usually shortened to twist is a girl. When a man remarks that he has had a bull and cow with a tom tug, he means that he has had a row with a mugg. When at the race track he says he is going to get the seeds and spices on the charing crosses, he means he intends informing himself on the prices on the horses. The tick-tocks are the jocks. The and mouse means a house and the joss is the boss.

"I'M going to the Johnny Dobber's to get misbehave" means an expedition to the barber for a shave. Chirp and chase is the face. Barney Fair is the hair. I-suppose is the nose German hands means the hands. Gun Din is the chin. Thus if a guy tells you he is going to hand a German band on your Gun Din you better take the breeze. Lean and lurch is a finger, so if you are told to pipe the Sea Simon on a twist's lean and linger, you are being advised to observe the diamond on a dame's digit.

Plates of meat means the feet. Fieldwheat is a street. Mumble and moan is the phone. If we should tell you that we are going to have a bowl of chalk with a pot of pan on the mumble and moan, you would know that we are going to engage in a long chat with a man over the wire. Moan and wail is a jail. Tit for tat is a hat. Lump of lead is the head. Dicky dirt is a shirt. Mince pies the eyes. Cain and Abel is a table. Mobiety pegs the legs.

I'M afloat is a coat. Fiddle and flute is a suit. Daisy roots means the boots. Chalk farm is an arm. If your attention is called to the bill of coke on your left chalk farm you are to note the bloke on your left. Of course it could be the right chalk, too. Bottle and stopper means a copper. Oh my dear is beer and the near by far is the bar. Gay and frisky is whisky. An elephant's trunk is a drunk. Candy fudge is a judge. A real good rhyming linguist can in terms as he goes along, and while it all sounds like meaningless jargon, some of the expressions are amazingly pat.

We think we ought to tell you that this sort of like some of the ordinary speech of the day, which has terms that would scarcely pass in polite society, even if we could get them past the editor of the reader. You may use your imagination on the point if your mind runs in such channels.

War "Genius" Now a "Private"

By EDWARD ROBINSON
Wide World Features

LONDON—Admiral Sir Reginald Hall, famous spy chaser whom Walter Hines Page called the "only genius" produced by World War I, is staying "in retirement" in World War II—a private in Britain's Home Guard.

During World War I Sir Reginald was responsible for exposure of the Zimmermann note from Germany to Mexico that had so much to do with the United States' entry into the war. Later he lured German Pacific fleet to destruction at the Falkland Islands.

Today, to use his own words, he is "just a private in the home guards," and intent on doing nothing more than "live as a private gentleman."

Hall has made few appearances in the public limelight in the past 20 years. He wrote a book on his war-time experiences with the title "Strange Intelligence." It was published in 1931, and Hall made much of the argument that espionage was a powerful factor in promoting and maintaining peace.

He made firm friends with Franz von Rintelen, one-time head of the German Secret Service in the United States. Von Rintelen went to Britain in 1934 and renounced his German nationality. He now is interned in the Isle of Man.

Demand Seen for Social Workers

By The Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS—A great increase in the demand for social workers as a result of the war was seen by Dr. Elizabeth Wisner, dean of the Tulane university school of social work.

"Already numerous social workers from Tulane university have gone into defense or wartime jobs," she said. "It was during the last war that social work received its impetus as a profession, and the problems created by this war probably will cause a great upswing again."

Dr. Wisner, a former medical social worker with the American Red Cross, said morale problems among men in the army, which were one of the greatest social workers had to deal with before the war, should virtually disappear.

The army quartermaster corps is using substitutes for more than 800 materials "critical."

wars—and not without ultimate success—we have now at our side mighty allies."

The premier declared that Britain had preserved free speech, but added "there is a limit which I must have respected."

"I cannot allow propaganda to disturb the army or weaken the confidence of the country and the armed forces in the qualities and character of our devoted corps of officials," he said.

On the Russian front, Soviet dispatches told a story of mounting German slaughter along the vast battle line, while a bulletin from Adolf Hitler's field headquarters acknowledged a fresh wave of Red army assaults.

During the night, RAF warplanes "very heavily bombed" German war foundries in the Ruhr, the London air ministry said, and pounded the German U-boat base at St. Nazaire on the Nazi-occupied French coast. The magnitude of the offensive was indicated by the air ministry's acknowledgement that 11 RAF bombers were lost.

Planes Over Paris

Vichy reported that RAF planes also "stormed" Paris in a 90-minute operation said, warning that they would return to bomb French factories working for the nazi military machine.

The first half, announcement said, Germans might return. Paris on the previous night, reflecting "great alarm" to military installations.

Soviet dispatches reported that 88 German planes raided the Arctic circle port of Murmansk, key Soviet base for the arrival of United States war supplies, and that more than 100 planes, raiders and defenders, battled over the city at one time. Eleven German planes were reported shot down.

Hitler's headquarters reported that the long Russian winter was breaking amid a "continuing thaw" and declared that tank-led Red army attacks in the Donets river basin "collapsed in bitter hand-to-hand fighting" with German-Rumanian troops.

Nazi Call on Balkans for Men Backfires

LONDON, March 26—Nazi machinations to get at least 750,000 men from the axis' Balkan junior partners to help fight Hitler's wars were charged today by British diplomatic sources who gleefully predicted they might prove a boomerang.

Instead of getting men, said these informants with close continental connections, Hitler may have to increase his own garrisons in southeast Europe to squelch an unbearable war situation aroused by distrust and reawakened old enmities stirred by his recruiting efforts.

"Frankly," said one observers, "we are delighted with the situation."

Furthermore, they declared Nazi plans to overawe Turkey with tales of German army masses on her European frontier and actual Bulgarian troop concentrations there have "not had the slightest effect on the Turks;" in fact, British-Turkish relations recently have been cemented despite Hitler's efforts to weaken them.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio) who has opposed suspension of the 40-hour week law, said he also was beginning to receive many communications from union members against legislation pending in both the house and senate.

Chairman Thomas (D-Okla) of the senate labor committee discovered the United States Chamber of Commerce is planning a "grass-roots-congress campaign which would disturb labor-management harmony.

Rep. Vinson (D-Ga), chairman of the naval committee, predicted that the bill would go before the house soon, possibly with modifications. He said a clause pla...

Tire Thieves Steal Eight in Marysville

By The Associated Press

MARYSVILLE, March 26—Tire thieves struck Marysville Tuesday night and as a result five local motorists lost eight tires which are almost impossible to replace. In all but one case the tires along with the wheels were taken from cars parked in garages with the doors left open.

Victim of the thefts with the number taken were: Carl Spain, two; Charles Mack, three, Walter Elliott, one, Virgil Mahew, one, and Hale Cline, one. Sheriff Homer S. Rouch and Marshal Clarence Brown, who investigated the thefts, believe that the thieves were a band operating from some city other than Marysville.

Pillsbury's BEST XXXX Flour
All-Purpose

Here's a "fightin' food"... Complete recipe for

Pillsbury's CORN & BEEF POT PIE

1. Fizzle 3 c. diced dried beef (or cubed raw beef, seasoned to taste) in 4 Tbsps. fat. Remove. Pan-fry 1 c. chopped celery and 2 tsps. minced onion in remaining fat until tender and delicately brown. Add 2 c. whole-kernel corn, well drained. 2. Remove vegetables from fat. Add 2 Tbsps. fat and 3 Tbsps. Pillsbury's Best Enriched Flour; blend thoroughly. Gradually add 1 c. corn juice and 2 c. milk; stir constantly. Add 1 c. grated American cheese, ¾ tsp. pepper, 1 tsp. sugar; remove from heat. 3. Combine meat, vegetables and sauce, turn into large casserole. MAKE WHOLE WHEAT BISCUIT DOUGH: 4. Sift and measure 1 c. Pillsbury's Best Enriched Flour. (Two added B-vitamins and iron now enrich Pillsbury's Best without in any way changing its superb baking quality. These vitamins are vital health elements—elements your whole family needs in these strenuous times for sound, steady nerves and for the ability to thrive on hard physical work!) Add 3 tsps. baking powder (or 2 tsps. double acting), ¾ tsp salt, 1 tsp. sugar; sift together twice. Add 1 c. Pillsbury's Whole Wheat Flour, unsifted. (Get this wholesome, wheaty flour from your grocer—you'll find new uses for it constantly.) Mix well. 5. Cut in 4 Tbsps. shortening till mixture is like coarse meal. 6. Add ¾ c. milk all at once, mix till all flour is dampened. 7. Turn on floured board. Knead lightly for a few seconds to smooth dough. (Your baking ingredients are growing more precious day by day. You can't risk wasteful baking failures! Protect your baking success with Bake-Proved Pillsbury's Best! It's been tested by actual baking 4 to 6 times a day during milling!) 8. Roll out dough to ½ in. thickness, cut with floured 2-in. biscuit cutter. 9. General Wainwright of Bataan

Wide World Features

Lean, hardbitten Jonathan M. Wainwright who succeeded General MacArthur as leader of the American-Filipino forces on Bataan peninsula, is a staff officer who likes to lead his men on the battlefield. His comment on a Japanese demand for surrender—"no reply was necessary, none was made"—is already a classic. These are some of the highlights in the career of the 59-year-old native of Walla Walla, Wash.

TEACHER. Wainwright has been cavalry instructor in U. S. Army schools.

STRATEGY OF DEFENSE is worked out in the field on Bataan as Wainwright (left) and General MacArthur. Nicknamed "Skinny" since his West Point days, Wainwright advanced from major-general to lieutenant-general when he assumed command of the never-say-die forces on the Luzon peninsula.

FIGHTER. his rearguard action saved forces during Bataan withdrawal.

EXECUTIVE. he pounds table and keeps orderlies, aides moving constantly. Sister says he'll be safe as long as he has father's watch.

SHOW BOAT GIRL

By ROBERTA COURTLAND

CHAPTER 16

"She Ain't For You"

THEY had reached a small cabin at the end of the lane. It had a neat little garden in front, filled with late marigolds and zinnias and four-o'clocks. As they swung open the gate in the little picket fence, Jimmy explained the cabin being a little different from others in the double row.

"Mam' Cindy was my grandmother's nurse and my mother's. She was too old to look after me when I came along, but she supervised the 'flighty young thing' who did! She's almost 90 and when she became too old to work, Dad retired her, gave her a deed to this little plot of ground and her house and a pension. It makes her feel very rich and independent and important — far more so than when, during the Civil War, she was given her freedom, along with the other slaves at Enderlie."

As they came up the little garden walk the door of the cabin opened and a young colored girl of perhaps 18 or 19, neatly clean in her Sunday best, stood shyly aside to greet and welcome them.

"Hello, Lily," said Jimmy smiling. "How's Mam' Cindy today?"

"She right pert'y, Marse Jimmy, thank you, suh," answered Lily, with a flash of white teeth in a shy excited smile. "But she feel much directly she know you come to see her."

A frail voice from inside the cabin inquired, "Who dat?"

"It's Marse Jimmy, Mammy," answered Lily.

"Then make yo' mannehs, gal, and show Marse Jimmy in," ordered the frail old voice sharply.

"Please to come in, Marse Jimmy an' yo' lady," said Lily severely.

Jimmy stepped across the threshold into the little cabin, with its whitewashed walls, its tiny stone fireplace above which a split log formed a mantel-shelf decorated with a fluted white paper frill. On it there were three photographs in frames that were made of pine-cones laboriously glued to cardboard.

In a corner there was a huge bed covered by coarse but spotless sheets and a cotton counterpane so white that the tiny old woman who lay against the pillows looked like a little old monkey. A snowy "head-rag" covered her head, and beneath it her face was crumpled and black and incredibly wrinkled. Clawlike hands waved feebly as Jimmy came in, and the crumpled old face was touched by a radiant smile.

"De Lawd bless me effen hit ain't ma li'l Marster," she greeted him, and her eyes went to Melissa. "Who dat you brung to see me, Marse Jimmy?"

"A beautiful lady, Mam' Cindy," said Jimmy. "That is, if you wants her fortune told."

Mam' Cindy nodded her old head. "I take no stren'th to tell fortune fo' a pretty lady like you, Marse Jimmy. She gwine be a happy woman-folks sad 'ca'se she gwine be able to ma'ay one ob dem—an' she be happy 'ca'se she good. Cindy kin see dat much is she ain't blind," she said, and one of the claw-like hands waved. "Lemme see yo' hand—lemme see kin Ah see what gwine happen—"

The Prophecy

Melissa put her hand in the old woman's feverish grip and Mam' Cindy peered at the lines in Melissa's palm owlishly, one black finger tracing the lines. Then Cindy looked up at Jimmy, frowning, puzzled.

"She ain't fo' you, Marse Jimmy," she said almost grimly, and Melissa saw Jimmy's jaw set a little. "She gwine have a lot of trouble; she gwine weep an' mourn, but the fus' thing she know, she gwine fin' herself in de arms ob de man she love mo' dan anythin' in de world—only dat man ain' gwine be you, Marse Jimmy."

To her surprise Melissa saw that the words made Jimmy angry. But he controlled the emotion and said lightly and firmly, "I've heard you tell a lot of fortunes, Mam' Cindy, but that's the first time I ever heard you miss out entirely. Of course she's going to marry me—"

Mam' Cindy nodded, and a look of sorrow touched her tired old eyes. "Yo was always lak' dat, Marse Jimmy—always a'settin yo' heart on somethin' dat warn't meant fo' you, and trying to tear de place down when you couldn't get it."

"And I've never learned any better, have I, Mam' Cindy?" said Jimmy, and managed a grin. "But as long as she not in love with somebody else—"

Mam' Cindy sent a dark look after Melissa, who was on the little cabin porch now, and said grimly, "Who say she ain' in love wid nobody else? Who says dat—lies!"

Jimmy looked startled. And then he straightened and said lightly, "Well, don't let it worry you, Mam' Cindy—just take care of yourself and be happy."

He went out to join Melissa on the tiny porch. Their way led them down to the stables, the kennels and back to the house in the late afternoon sunlight. Before they reached the terrace they heard laughter and voices and Jimmy scowled, his jaw tightening a little. But he said nothing as he led Melissa up the steps from the garden to the terrace where half a dozen people now sat with Mr. and Mrs. Marston.

There were two very pretty girls, an older woman and man and two young men.

One of the girls, whose shining dark hair was swept up from her forehead in an extreme but very becoming hair-do, looked at Melissa with cold, smoky gray eyes and said accusingly to Jimmy, "I'm still furious with you for being late to dinner last night, you heel!"

"Honey, how many times must I apologize? And didn't I buy you orchids to make amends?" protested Jimmy, grinning a little, and with a look in his eyes that told Melissa he was flattered at the girl's insistence on her grievance.

"Orchids, yes—and very pretty!" said Honey. "But just the same, I waited forty-five minutes for you—and I don't like young men who forgot their dates—do you, Melissa?"

She turned so suddenly and unexpectedly on Melissa that Melissa didn't have an answer ready.

Insult

The older woman, a Mrs. Humphreys who seemed to be Honey's aunt, had been eyeing Melissa with a strange intensity, and now she said suavely to Mrs. Marston, "Anne, you didn't tell me you had a house-guest. You must let Honoria and me entertain for her."

"Oh, Melissa's not a house-guest," said Mrs. Marston gently. "She's just spending the day with us."

"Oh," Mrs. Humphreys' eyebrows went up a little. "Then you're visiting in the neighborhood, Miss Marlowe?"

"No," said Melissa quietly. "I am working in the neighborhood—on the River Queen."

"What?" Mrs. Humphreys' eyebrows really jerked upward now, and she looked startled. "Working? The River Queen?"

Honey said, a little chuckle in her voice, her eyes acrid with malicious amusement, "It's a night-club, darling—a shop boat night-club and gambling den. What do you do, Miss Marlowe—deal faro or handle the dice table?"

The whole atmosphere, which had been so warmly friendly, so gaily intimate, was suddenly hostile.

"Miss Marlowe is a singer," said Jim Marston, unexpectedly coming to Melissa's rescue, "and a very good one, too. You must hear her, Sarah—you'd enjoy it."

Mrs. Humphreys said icily, "I doubt it."

Melissa said quietly, above the pain and embarrassment that suddenly swept over her, "I think perhaps I'd better go—it's getting late. Thank you, Mrs. Marston, for a lovely day."

"I'll get the car," said Jimmy sullenly.

As Melissa stood at the steps, around the corner of the house from the terrace, waiting for Jimmy to bring the car, she could not help hearing Mrs. Humphreys' rather high voice saying accusingly, "Well, I must say, Anne, I never expected to meet that sort of person in your house."

Melissa held her breath. Mrs. Marston had been so kind and friendly and pleasant—surely she would defend Melissa against that slurring remark. Instead Mrs. Marston's voice, cool, amused, disdainful, said, "My dear, when you have a grown-up son on your hands, 'most anything can happen!"

The car came around and Melissa, with a little sob of relief, slid into the seat beside Jimmy. He was scowling, grim, his face set a little. He said nothing until the car had gone down the drive and entered the private road that led out to the highway.

Then he said grimly, "It's your own fault," you know."

"My fault!" Melissa stammered hotly.

"Your fault," said Jimmy grimly. "Why did you have to go yammering that you worked on a show boat? Why couldn't you have let them think that you were visiting in New Orleans, or that you lived there and that you had come out for the day—"

"Why should I lie about it? I'm not ashamed of working on the show boat," she blazed hotly.

"Then why are you on the verge of tears just because Honey and the others seemed to think there was something—well, something a little off-color about your job?" demanded Jimmy.

"I'm not hurt about that—Honey and the others mean absolutely nothing to me." Melissa told him swiftly and sharply. "I—am hurt because your mother was so sweet and friendly and then, when I was waiting for you back there on the steps, she told Mrs. Humphreys that she just tolerated having me around so that you could see that I couldn't ever fit into your world—"

"Oh, you'll get over that idea in time," said Jimmy comfortably. "You might as well—I'm a determined sort of a man, you know."

"I'm pretty determined myself," Melissa warned him hotly.

Jimmy grinned at her.

Watching Marion Rifles Drill Is Stirring Sight

Boys Assemble for Weekly Training in Fundamentals of Army Principles; Drills Now Out-of-Doors.

By HALLIE HOUCK

If I had a brother I'd want him to be in the Marion Rifles.

With dirt in my shoes, dust in my eyes, and shivers on the double-quick up and down my back I salute these high school boys who once a week give an hour and a half to learning the elementary principles of military training.

I watched the boys for more than an hour Monday afternoon at the Central Junior High school grounds when they did their first out-of-doors drilling. The preceding seven weeks' drills were in The Star auditorium, but from now on, weather permitting, the drills will be conducted at the school grounds every Monday afternoon from 4:15 to 5:45.

Why would I want my brother in the Marion Rifles?

Because I agree with George D. Hildebrandt, commander of the civilian military training program, and Walter E. Mathiot who commands the student corps.

Both former army men, they assert that a man who goes into service knowing something of military training is the man who is singled out for advancement.

Helpful Training

"A drill sergeant, trying to instruct new batches of men coming into camp day after day, immediately singles out the man who knows his right arm from his left, and knows what 'right face' and 'left flank' mean, who knows that the command 'at ease' means nothing to do with uniforms," Commander Hildebrandt said. "That man is sure to be attention of the superior and get somewhere."

The fourth army call will take the men up to 64. It's logical that the fifth call will be for the youths 18 to 20.

If I had a brother 16, the minimum age for Marion Rifles member ship, I'd want him to have the training before that call comes to his country's service. Older youths may volunteer for the cadet corps and men volunteer in the senior corps.

There were 62 boys out for drill Monday. A high wind swept the grounds constantly, carrying regular "Fort Riley, Kan." blasts of grit, mixed with the soot and smoke of passing trains.

Marching on the ground was different from marching on a smooth floor. In a week's time it's easy to forget details of drill order. At first the marching was on the ragged side, but under the constant admonition of the two commanders and three student captains-for-a-day, Bill Pate, Jim Duffey and Paul Mason, the boys began to move with rhythm.

The three captains-for-a-day could yell "Ten-shun." "Pot-wa-a-rd, march!" "Comp-a-a-ny, halt!" at appropriate places and mention.

Parade Drill

Commander Mathiot, who was with Headquarters Co. of the National Guard here for years and later was advanced to captaincy at Camp Shelby, Miss., put the boys through the mysteries of a battalion parade the last half hour of the drill.

He called a conference of the captains and Don Coffey, whom he appointed adjutant, and explained the procedure to them, and ordered them to proceed.

"Oh, yes, and also to be conference was 'the Rifles' band," Ken McKee, snare drummer, said.

"You're a 25 piece band," Commander Mathiot told him, in explaining just where he was to stand on the "parade ground." McKee grinned and told his pieces. McKee told me he wished to goodness some drummer would take over his duties of beating out march time so that he could get in there and go through the drill. But every army needs a band and until some drummer would rather drum than march take over it looks like McKee is the Rifles' band.

Although three companies totaling 62 men don't make up a battalion, even in the new streamlined army, Commander Mathiot and the boys went through the formations.

Earnest Effort

It wasn't done to perfection, that first battalion parade. There were lots of ragged spots—but it was done by boys earnestly trying for perfection, willing to give their after-school free time to learning, and by men just as earnestly trying to teach the best things they know, all of it invaluable if and when the boys are called into any branch of military service.

Commanders Hildebrandt and Mathiot are going to continue the drilling throughout the summer months and as long as they feel there's a need for it. I'll wager a coke that if I go down to Central school on April 27 I'll see a pretty snappy battalion parade.

Membership in Marion Rifles isn't compulsory. Any boy 16 or older can join, if he has the written consent of the parent.

"We'd like to see 300 boys out here drilling," and I think we would if they and their parents could understand that we're trying to help the boys," Commander Hildebrandt said. "We're not alarmists, we're not trying to train these boys for war; we only want them to get the first taste of army discipline, to become accustomed to elementary military training."

Both the men feel that of the boys will stick with the training they'll eventually become so used to the drills that they will respond automatically.

Like Learning to Drive

"It's like learning to drive a car," Commander Hildebrandt explained. "At first you think laboriously every time you shift gears. Then suddenly one day you've done it automatically and you're a driver. It's that way with these boys. We'd like them to learn these drills so well that their response to commands becomes automatic, a part of them.

And do the boys like the drills?

Sixty-two of them were out Monday night and they didn't have to be there.

"I figure it's going to be fine training for us if we have to go," Coffey said, and Fate responded enthusiastically, "It's great fun."

Some of the 130 boys who signed up for the training can't drill in the afternoon because of paper routes or other jobs. They go to the Armory on Monday nights to drill.

Are the boys interested? Some of those who drill Monday afternoons go down to the Armory Monday nights to watch the other student corps and some of them show up the nights the cadet and senior corps drill.

Before the dismissal command was given Monday afternoon Commander Hildebrandt told the boys he would throw a party at the Armory in the near future for those with near-perfect attendance records.

The Program

Here's what the Marion Rifles program covers:

School of the soldier without arms, (weapons), which includes position of the soldier at attention; facing right, left, about; parade rest; right and left dress, close and extended; hand salute; at ease, at rest, in assembly formation.

Close order drill to include the movement of platoons, company and battalion groups at normal cadence, quick or double time.

Military ceremonies, battalion parades, guard mounts, honor guards, burial ceremonies, etc., care and cleaning of equipment; sanitation and hygiene; military courtesy, customs of the service; elementary military map reading; discussion of the "Articles of War."

Commander Hildebrandt, who was just over 16 when he enlisted in the Canadian army in 1915 and went overseas with the Duke of Connaught's Own Rifles, an infantry outfit, and who served 11 months before he was gassed and sent home, has lots of plans for his military training program, plans he will announce from time to time.

Here are the boys in the Marion Rifles, according to registrations furnished by Harding, St. Mary's, Central, Vernon and Thomas A. Edison schools:

DAIRY OUTPUT MAKING GAIN

Provides Lease-Lend Goods and Lowers Prices - Domestic Trade.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 26—Increased production of American dairy products not only has supplied the United Nations with lend-lease goods but at home has reduced domestic prices since America entered the war.

Prices of cheese and eggs are selling lower on major wholesale markets today than on Dec. 8, the day the nation's war entry. Butter showed today. Price declines in wholesale centers were followed in similar changes in retail.

The reason for the decline, officials said, was seasonal factors normally slump at this time of year. They said the usually indicated seasonal factors took precedence over lend-lease and market influence.

The agriculture marketing administration, which buys for lend-lease requirements, has recognized the seasonal factor in dairy production circles stated, and has reduced its prices for cheese, eggs and evaporated milk. The agency purchases little butter.

If the AMA had not made such reductions, traders said, it is likely that prices to consumers would have remained at, or near their autumn, 1941, levels. By lowering its bids, the agency obtained the goods it wanted and at the same time permitted housewives to buy dairy products for less.

Wholesale prices of representative grades of butter, cheese and eggs on the Chicago and New York markets on Dec. 8 and March 25 follow:

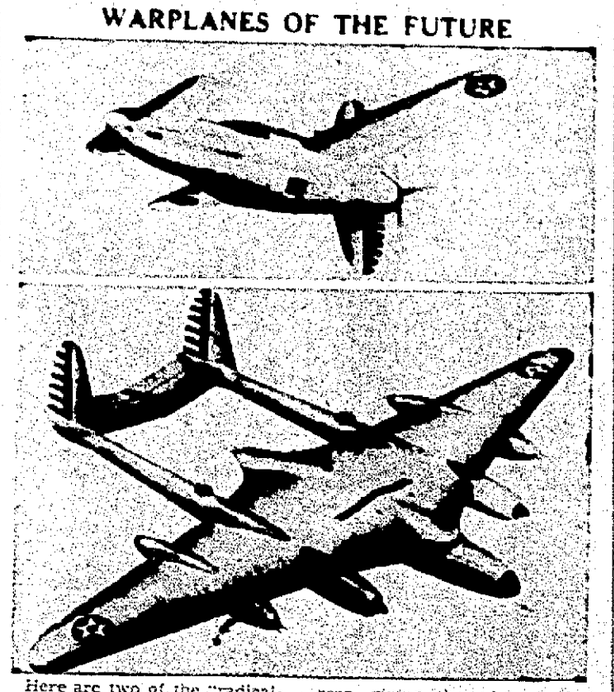
Chicago		New York
Dec. 8	March 25	Dec. 8	March 25
Butter—(92 Score, lb.)
Butter—(92 score, lb.)—
35	34¼	35¾	34½
Eggs—(Firsts, doz.)
33¼-34¾	26	35½	28¾
Cheese—(Current, lb.)
25½	21¼	26-¾	23-¾

Production of cheese, eggs and milk is at record levels. Butter output is below last year, primarily because milk which normally would be used for butter is being diverted to cheese.

Egg prices usually reach their lows in April, level off at this point for several months and then start climbing in autumn, traders said. Cheese quotations hit their lows in June, the month of greatest production, and turn up from that point to a high in December, the month of lowest output.

While prices have declined in recent months as the AMA lowered its bids, traders said such quotations were considerably higher than at this time last year. In addition to lend-lease buying, the market is receiving support from greater domestic consumer purchasing power, they said.

WARPLANES OF THE FUTURE



Here are two of the "radically different" plane designs whose possibilities are being explored by the best minds in our military aviation circles. At top is a plane called the "Canard." It has the tail first and the propeller at the extreme rear, giving the advantage of elimination of rough air over the plane. Below, a four-engined bomber with motors arranged for the procuring of advantageous defensive fire power. Two propellers are of the pusher and two of the tractor type.

LIPPMANN

pear before one committee or another?

For another thing, these many separate committees dealing with bits and pieces of the total war effort, are one of the fundamental causes of the bureaucratic trouble in the executive branch. Any one who wishes to examine the matter closely will find, I believe, that over long years there has been a very close connection between these committees and the independent bureau chiefs, who only now are being brought under effective control in the army and navy. For the congressional committees have exercised power in the departments through the fact that they have dealt more or less directly in regard to appropriations and related matters with the separate bureau chiefs.

The remedy is to create a small number of joint committees of both houses—perhaps one on the military and diplomatic conduct of the war, perhaps one on production and supply and perhaps one on civilian affairs. There should not be many committees, and never more than one dealing with the same field of interest, and the field should be a large one, because all problems are interrelated.

GETS SPECIAL PERMIT

By The United Press

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—Sgt. John Newsom of the Memphis army recruiting office, has enlisted what he believes is the tallest man in the U. S. army. Newsom obtained special permission from the Fourth Corps Area commander to enlist Thomas C. Dame Jr., of Tillatoba, Miss., who stands 6 feet 8½ inches—2½ inches taller than the army maximum. Dame, who is 24 and married, is nearly a foot taller than the recruiting officer.

TO ROUSE FLOW OF LIVER BILE

Normally about a quart of these digestion-aiding bile juices should flow freely into your intestines every 24 hours. A scanty flow—a slowing-up may mean Sick Headaches, so-called Biliousness, Poor Digestion, that "half sick" sour feeling and most probably constipation.

Avoid Calomel or other drastic drugs. Get a bottle of Kruschen Salts—a gentle exciant—tonight. Start right in tomorrow morning and take half a level teaspoonful in three-quarters of a glass of water (hot or cold) half an hour before breakfast, and keep it up for 20 days. Now you'll know what it is to get up feeling fit and ready for a real day's work. Try Kruschen—a famous English formula and see what it means to you when Bile Flows Freely. Satisfaction guaranteed or money back. Eckerd's Inc.

Marion County Judge at State Convention

Judge Hector S. Young is in Columbus today attending the first session of the two-day annual convention of Ohio's common pleas judges.

The Associated Press reported the jurists today related some of the "boners" they have made in court so that other judges may profit by their mistakes.

Pre-trial hearings, designed to settle litigation and avoid lengthy trials, will be considered during the two-day meeting with Judge Carl A. Weinman of Steubenville leading the discussions.

Judge Robert Putnam of Millersburg, a captain in the last World war, will head a panel on military service for jurists. Many judges have indicated they would volunteer if assured their posts after leaving the army or navy.

ONLY A FOXHUNT

By The United Press

HOMEWOOD, Ill.—Six squads of Homewood county police on the alert for saboteurs, turned to a field where 30 roughly-clad men armed with shotguns, had "mobilized." Police learned later tommy guns on the mysterious group. "What's going on," demanded Sgt. Joseph Brizzi. "We're farmers," one of them replied. "We're hunting foxes because they've been after our chickens."

DON'T NEED SKIS

By International News Service

CAMP STEWART, Ga.—In the past few weeks, nearly a dozen pairs of skis have been sent from northern states to soldiers in training at Camp Stewart. Seems somebody doesn't believe the native when he says it's balmy in temperature, and the nearest thing to snow is sand-dunes, which get pretty warm under the southern sun.

MAY GET OLD BOXCARS

By The United Press

DENVER—Two hundred old boxcars, no longer suited for Colorado mountain railroad use, may be used in Mexico. The Denver and Rio Grande Western railroad, which decided to scrap the 30-year-old cars, said it had made plans to sell them instead to a Chicago firm, which may transfer them to Mexican lines.

"PREVUE OF EASTER" DANCE SCHEDULED

Union Will Use Proceeds to Buy Defense Bonds.

A colorful show of the new Easter ensembles will sound the keynote of the "Prevue of Easter" dance to be held Saturday night at the Eagles hall, by Universal Cooler Local No. 750, International Union, United Automobile Workers of America, CIO affiliate.

Proceeds will be converted into defense bonds which have been designated by the sponsors as "Jap Plasters." Proceeds of a series of dances held this season and all other available funds are being converted into defense bonds, the officers state.

Music will be furnished by the Universal Cooler nine-piece orchestra and joining the employes of the Cooler Corp. will be the Isaly Dairy plant, a division of Local No. 750, and their friends.

Highlighting the evening's entertainment will be sleight-of-hand tricks by a prominent mid-western magician and other features will include a juvenile floor show and a jitter-bug contest. Round and square dancing will make up the program.

Athletic Association Files Report at Galion

Special to The Star

GALION, March 26—Maurice L. Miltenberger, treasurer of the Galion Athletic association, announced today that the association had a balance on hand March 19 of $251, with 1,597.10 in outstanding bills for equipment to be used in football and basketball next season. The equipment was purchased because of the curtailment of production expected next year.

The report listed a balance last September of $318.79 with income from athletic events until March 19 of $2,269.24. Income from last football season was $1,584.79; basketball $735.37, and miscellaneous activities, $111.65. Income showed that the Tiffin Calvert football game with $410.50 in receipts and the Marion Harding football game with $302.54 receipts led in attendance, while the Mt. Gilead basketball game with $125.10 in receipts and the Crestline basketball game with $115.05 in receipts led in attendance for that sport.

Defense Stamp Sales Up in Morrow County

Special to The Star

MT. GILEAD, March 26—Morrow county school children purchased nearly three times as many defense stamps and bonds in the second week of the campaign here as in the first.

Total sales in the Morrow county schools amounted to $619 in the last week. Chesterville led the county schools with $177.

All schools of the county are participating in the program for the sale of the stamps and bonds.

Hardin County Schools in Music Festival

KENTON, March 26—The annual spring music festival of the Hardin county public schools was held Wednesday evening in the Hardin Central school auditorium with Joseph A. Leeder of Ohio State university directing vocal numbers, and William B. McBride, also of O. S. U., leading massed bands and orchestras in that part of the program. Vocalists and instrumentalists of Alger, Dunkirk, McGuffey, Dola, Roundhead, Forest, Mt. Victory and Ridgeway schools took part. Arrangements were in charge of Joseph E. Lady of Ridgeway, county music chairman, and Frank C. Ransdell, county schools superintendent.

LUTHERAN GROUP MEETS

Mrs. Ivan McGinnis of South State street was hostess for a meeting of the Daughters of Luther of Emanuel Lutheran church Tuesday night. Contest awards were won by Mrs. Melvin Foos and Mrs. Harold Augenstein. In a game first honors went to Miss Edith Augenstein and Mrs. Arthur Webb was consoled.

2,500 CAR LICENSES REMAIN UNSOLD HERE

Deadline Draws Near; Chauffeur Total Runs High.

With about 2,500 Marion county auto owners still without 1942 license plates, James E. Messenger, deputy auto registrar, said today he expected a large last minute rush of purchasers.

Up to two weeks ago sale of plates had been far below the average, he said; however, a steady flow of purchases in the last few days raised the total to about normal. Although an accurate figure was not available Mr. Messenger estimated that 4,000 plates have been sold so far.

He reminded auto and truck owners that midnight March 31 is the deadline for use of present tags. After that, drivers operating vehicles with old tags will be subject to arrest, he explained. He said the office will be kept open Friday, Monday and Tuesday nights from 7 to 9 o'clock for the convenience of industrial workers and others whose hours are such that they cannot get to the office during the regular hours of 8:30 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Sale of chauffeur's licenses in the last few days has overshadowed plate sales records at the bureau reveal. Mr. Messenger said the unusual increase in sale of chauffeur licenses resulted from a ruling of the contracting firm of Hunkin-Conkey of Cleveland, contractors for the Scioto Ordnance plant, who require that all applicants for truck-driving jobs must show official chauffeur's license.

Mr. Messenger asks that persons still wishing to obtain licenses do so at the earliest possible convenience. As is the custom the office will be open the same hours on Saturday as through the week.

Benefit Dance For Cage Team Planned

A dance for the benefit of the Harding High school basketball team, sponsored by a group of student boosters and the Club Co-ed of the Y. M. C. A., will be given Friday night from 8 to 11:30 in the high school gymnasium.

The dance will be for all pupils of the ninth through the twelfth grades and will be chaperoned by members of the Harding faculty. A small admission will be charged.

The weekly Club Co-ed dance has been cancelled in favor of the benefit.

CONDITION IMPROVES

Mrs. Roy Sampley of 381 Monroe street, who underwent an operation yesterday at the Frederick C. Smith clinic, is reported to be improving.

CHARGE FILED AFTER MOTORCYCLE ACCIDENT

Youth Accused of Permitting Unlicensed Driving.

Calvin Clayton Bates, 18, of 534 North Main street was arrested on a charge of permitting an unlicensed person to operate his motorcycle. The arrest followed an accident involving the motorcycle in which three persons were injured. The accident occurred at Church street and Grand avenue Wednesday noon.

Bates, who suffered a leg cut and a fractured toe in the mishap, will not appear in court before Municipal Judge Hance. Pending his recovery, he is free under $50 bond.

Harold Williams of 191 Harrison street who was operating the vehicle at the time of the accident, is reported recovering at City hospital from injuries suffered. His condition was reported as "fairly good." X-rays are being taken to determine the extent of injuries.

Della Lee Ice, 12, of 516 Polk street, who was hit by the motorcycle while riding her bicycle across the intersection, is recovering at her home from injuries to her left leg and arm.

Police reported damage to the headlight and front fender of the motorcycle owned by Frank which, after hitting the girl ran into a tree.

F. M. America, Erie Magazine Editor, Dies

Frank M. America, special public relations representative of the Erie railroad, died Wednesday night in Cleveland, according to an Associated Press dispatch. A former Buffalo newspaper man and Associated Press correspondent in London, Mr. America was editor of the Erie Railroad magazine. He was known in Marion through his association with the railroad and in connection with his work on the magazine.

30 NAZI BOMBERS BLASTED AT MA

By The Associated Press

LONDON, March 26 — German dive-bombers were downed or damaged yesterday in one of the greatest air battles ever fought over embattled England, the air ministry reported tonight.

The RAF's Spitfires and other warplanes such have become the attacking force, the ministry said that at least half of the raiders were not able to return to base, else landed riddled by machine-gun bullets and the flaming of cannon shells.

Who's Hitler? Don't Ask the Adamses

By CHARLES L. FONTENAY
Wide World Features

HENDERSONVILLE, Tenn. — They never heard of Hitler and they think Mussolini is just another 'furriner.' They don't have any mail boxes because they never get any mail. And not a single member of any of the families has even seen the inside of a schoolroom.

"They" are the Adams families—"the cave people." Sumner countians call them although they do not live in caves any more—who live in the Tennessee hills about 10 miles north of here.

There are six or eight families, whose members range from two to nearby 70, living in rude log huts about a mile and a half from the nearest country road. One or two of them have been to Nashville, and a few of them have occasionally visited Hendersonville and nearby Gallatin and Goodlettsville, but some of the youngsters have never been outside their little colony.

With crude implements and a rangy horse, the only work animal in the colony, they eke out a living by cultivating small patches of corn and potatoes. They occasionally tour the back roads selling shoe strings they make from groundhog skins.

'Old Tom' Adams is probably the oldest member of the colony, but he doesn't know how old he is.

"I just can't say exactly," he said, "I misplaced my papers somewhere but I reckon I must be between 66 and 68."

"What do you think about Hitler? Old Tom was asked.

He looked sharply from face to face, then replied tentatively, "Well, I don't rightly know. What do you think about him?"

"Oh, he's doing all right," was the answer, with a view to testing Tom's knowledge. "He's probably exactly right about everything, don't you reckon?"

"Wal, he might be," was Tom's careful retort. "But if he ain't right, he orta be."

According to B. E. Westgate, Sumner county farmer and fox-hunter, and County Health Officer W. M. Deadman, the Adamses wandered down into the county a decade ago from "some place in the Upper Cumberland country."

The land they settled on was "open land" (with no owner) when they first came and recently there was a movement to force them to move—but the "cave people" had remained in peaceable possession of the land for the legal seven-year period, thus attaining squatter's rights. Despite their ignorance of other worldly customs, the Adamses knew their squatter's rights and so they still have their land.

And, though they live within 30 miles of Tennessee's capital city, which recently was partially blacked out in an air-raid alert, the Adamses don't know there's a war on.

LIFE IS PEACEFUL for Alvie Adams and his son, Bobby, for the war has not yet reached their backwoods Tennessee cabin.

OHIO BANKER HOLDUP VICTIM

Prominent Powhatan Man Is Slain in Business District Gun Battle.

POWHATAN O., March 26—Alex C. Van Dyne, 57, Powhatan national bank director and school board member, was fatally wounded one of two holdup men who killed him in a business district gun battle last night, authorities said today.

Van Dyne's wife, Corinne, and a son Leland, said they heard the shooting and rushed to a window in time to see gun flames. Van Dyne, whose apartment was next to the bank, died soon after his wife and son reached him.

"They got me, call Ed" Van Dyne whispered just before he died. Leland said he referred to Marshal Ed Carpenter. The boy said his father had between $2,000 and $3,000 in his pocket at the time.

Van Dyne was ambushed in front of his home last night while carrying the day's receipts of his filling station. Emptying his pistol at the marauders, he frustrated the robbery but was felled by a .45 caliber bullet.

The men fled in an automobile and the banker died a short time later.

SENATE INVESTIGATES RUBBER, DYE TRUST

Agreement with German Company To Be Aired.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 26—A study of the extent to which agreements between Standard Oil Company (New Jersey) and the German Dye Trust may have hampered development of synthetic rubber in America was opened today by the senate defense investigating committee.

The committee subpoenaed members of the justice department anti-trust division, headed by Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold, to tell the government's case against the oil company.

The case was settled yesterday by a decree under which the company agreed to free to American industry its patents on synthetic rubber and gasoline and other important chemical processes. The company, six subsidiaries and three top officials were fined a total of $50,000 for violation of the anti-trust law.

In 1929 the American firm reached an agreement with the German Dye Trust, Interessengemeinschaft (I. G.) Farbenindustrie Aktiengesellschaft, for an exchange of interest in specified inventions under which the Standard Oil obtained rights to a number of processes including a new method for making TNT.

Japanese Naval Captain Tries To Keep Up Spirit

By DEWITT MacKENZIE
Wide World War Analyst

Captain Hiroaki Hiraide, Japanese naval spokesman, has put before his people a rosy rosary summary of Nippon's position in the battle of the Pacific, and one suspects he was impelled in part by the MacArthur spirit of initiative and such evidence of American naval activity as the bombing raids on Wake and Marcus islands and rumors the Yanks also were in the Macassar Strait area.

Here are the points Captain Hiraide set out to drive home:

1 Japan must now secure Australia and dominate the Indian ocean in order to provide security for future operation.

2 The belief held by some Japanese that Nippon has become invincible because she has her hands on the vast resources of Indonesia is wholly wrong, because only when she is able to make practical use of those resources will she become self-sufficient.

3 Since the occupation of Java there has been a let-down in Japan's offensive and she is now on the defensive. She must keep on the offensive if she is to win.

The captain describes the military position accurately and it's interesting to see the thing through his eyes.

Japan's guns will profit her nothing if she cannot consolidate them, and she can't do that until she has knocked out Australia as a base. That means beating MacArthur's combined American and Australian forces on a battlefield covering a million square miles and guarded by some of nature's strongest bulwarks.

Hiraide's purpose in putting his cards on the table (well, some of 'em) is to prevent his public from becoming over-confident and slackening in the war effort. His idea is sound, but if he's as smart as he talks, he will know that the defeat of Australia is going to mean one of the greatest military operations man could conceive. It will make the rest of Japan's conquests look silly.

And it is hard to believe the Nipponese have the stamina to carry it through.

MacArthur isn't ready yet to stage a major offensive, but so long as the steadily growing American-Australian base exists, the allied air and naval forces will prey with increasing intensity upon the long Japanese communications.

Control of the Indian ocean also is necessary to protect Indonesia from the west and to further Japan's ambitions in Burma and India. The Jap occupation of the Andaman islands, as announced yesterday, represents another step towards fulfillment of their ambition to dominate that great water. It's a pity the allies had to lose these islands, for it is a nasty blow.

As Hiraide says, future conquests depend on possession of Australia. However, when Japan sees herself stymied in this project, and thereby placed in a dangerous position, the result might be an attack on Russia. The Japanese idea would be to try to save themselves by bolstering Hitler's fight.

Standards of purity and germination for certain vegetable seeds have been established by official decree in Uruguay and importation of those not conforming to the standards has been prohibited.

GO AT JAPS ON WAKE ISLAND U. S. CRUISER LETS BROADSIDE

PRESIDENT ORDERS SMALL BUSINESS AID

Loans To Finance War Contracts Authorized.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 26 — President Roosevelt authorized today the financing of war contracts for small business through guaranteed loans.

Under a Presidential executive order, the war and navy departments and the maritime commission may guarantee or even make loans necessary for war production to stimulate participation by small business firms.

These agencies may enter into contracts with any federal reserve bank, the RFC or "any other financing institution" guaranteeing them against loss of principal or interest on loans, discounts or advances, or on commitments in connection with them, for financing war output.

The executive order was prepared by the war production board, the war and navy departments and the maritime commission.

A White House statement said that it was the opinion of high officials of these agencies that "this order will greatly speed the war production of small business and sub-contractors generally."

Salvage Campaign Plans Outlined

the roll call was read by Clyde Caldwell, safety-service director and co-chairman of the Marion county committee.

Facts About Prices

It was brought out during the meeting that farmers who have milling metal to sell are under the impression that the government price has been fixed at $20 per ton and that they refuse to sell the much-needed scrap at a lower price.

Junk dealers and mill officials present revealed the $20 figure given in recent newspaper stories is the top price being paid for the highest grade metal which has been carefully sorted and delivered to the purchaser. They said $12 per ton for scrap metal delivered to the purchaser, or $10 per ton if called for by the purchaser, is the average price being paid today for such miscellaneous and unsorted metal as farmers have to sell.

Marion junk dealers said they would stand behind the $12-$10 price schedule in the emergency salvage program and that they will call for a half-ton or more of scrap within an eight or ten mile radius of Marion. Their action in this connection came at the request of the local salvage committee that a definite price be established so that farmers, especially, may be assured they are receiving a fair price for metal during this campaign.

Members of the committee said farmers who can not receive such a price should get in touch with any committeeman for action.

Main Object

At both the general meeting and the subsequent session of the Marion committee, it was pointed out that the main thing in the salvage program is not that the metal be donated, necessarily, but that it be gathered by the individual and made available for purchase immediately.

Every speaker emphasized the life-or-death need for scrap metal. They said in many instances mills which are on war production 100 per cent are being forced to close down from one-third to one-half of their furnaces because of the desperate need for metal. Mr. Stiers said that all the streetcar rails in Ohio, if gathered up for scrap, would not keep one average-size mill in operation for more than a month. He said our scrap supply was practically depleted by sale to Japan.

Mr. Simmons, who said the steel industry was represented only in an advisory capacity, urged that local committees adopt a "get it flowing" slogan so that the war production furnaces which are down may be reopened for "offense production."

Warning Sounded

He said that the "let George do it" attitude is destructive and that if people back home don't wake up soon to the fact that all kinds of metal are urgently needed now, the war may soon be brought home literally.

Mr. Weible urged that the campaign be termed a "program" rather than a drive, in an effort to provide a sustained impetus to the flow of scrap iron. "This is a matter to be continued for the duration," he said, "not merely for the short time involved in some benefit project."

He said a little extra effort now to help the soldiers at the front may be the deciding factor in keeping them there. In speaking of the need for paper, he said it takes a solid carload of paper to provide enough blueprints for one battleship. "In the paper program," he said, "let's get more than we need; in the scrap metal program, we'll be doing well to get as much as we need."

Community Program

Mr. Pierson briefly outlined local committee procedure in securing the assistance of community organizations in the campaign and stressed the importance of the individual effort needed.

At the request of the members of other county committees, Mr. Alber presented a detailed outline of the program as planned and executed in Marion city and county. He emphasized the necessity of county school cooperation and the work done by boy and girl scouts. He said in Marion the air raid warden collection system is being undertaken for best possible coverage.

All the speakers sounded the keynote of patriotism in the "Salvage for Victory" program. They said the real way to help win the war is to get down in the basement and out in the yard and get all available scrap into the production effort.

The Marion committee discussed plans to advertise the program among farm groups and to get the scrap flowing from both farms and the city. Methods of collection in the city were discussed and proposals for coordinating the program through the local junk dealer were considered.

4. The persistent and successful Pacific fleet task force operations such as the January 31 raid on the Marshall and Gilbert islands, the February 24 attack on Wake island and the March 4 bombardment of Marcus island.

The first of these actions smashed enemy bases and naval forces threatening the American supply line into the Australian-New Zealand area. The latest two, reported by the navy yesterday, carried the war deep into the enemy's front yard and wrecked bases serving as outposts for Japan's main island line of China sea defenses.

While much of what is now being done apparently serves as immediate defense purpose, authorities noted that any offensive action from interior China against the Japanese-held coast, from India against Indo-China, and from Australia against the East Indies will require relatively secure jumping off bases, so that defense becomes the necessary prerequisite to any offense.

Marion Child Hurt When Hit by Bicycle

Four-year-old Bunnie Marie Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cloy Johnson of 342 South Prospect street, suffered a compound fracture of the left leg and body bruises when she was struck by a bicycle while playing near her home last night about 8.

She was taken to the office of a local physician for treatment and released to her home. Her condition is reported to be fair. She was to be removed today to the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Howell of 582 Herman street.

DEFENSE ARGUMENTS MAY END TODAY

Forest Glen Proceedings Now in Final Stages.

Special to The Star

COLUMBUS, O., March 26 — Possibility that the final arguments of defense attorneys in the Forest Glen, Inc., conspiracy trial here on federal charges would end today was seen as about four attorneys had statements to present at the opening of today's proceedings.

Yet to argue were Matthew Bezzer, Paul McNamara, Robert Beatty and Lieutenant Governor Paul Herbert, all of Columbus.

Lieutenant Governor Herbert will be the last speaker on behalf of the defense. He represents Robert Marshall, vice president and general manager of Forest Glen, Inc.

Defends Salesman

During yesterday's session Edwin Judy, counsel for one of the salesmen-defendants and co-counsel for Mr. Marshall, completed his statements to the jury. One of the high points in Mr. Judy's argument was the statement made on behalf of Defendant William Clark. Mr. Judy stated Clark invested $30,000 of his own funds in 12 different apartment buildings. Mr. Judy asked the jury if the indictment brought by the government against Mr. Clark meant that he conspired to defraud himself?

Judy stated the investments made by Clark was an indication of his faith in the success of the project.

Frank Wiedemann, Marion attorney followed Mr. Judy before the jury. Mr. Wiedemann, counsel for J. W. Jacoby, Marion, former president and attorney for Forest Glen, Inc., and T. H. Malloy of Marion, also spoke in behalf of L. A. Crotty and C. O. Willey, both of Marion.

Pleads for Father

A touch of emotion was injected into the trial as Paul Walters, attorney for Defendant C. F. Walters of Cleveland, finished his argument in a choked voice and pleaded to the jury.

"I know my father is an honest man. He always was an upright and upstanding citizen. I know this better than anyone."

At that point the defendant Walters' voice broke and he told the jury,

"I can't say any more to you."

Last attorney to speak before the jury yesterday was Ted Kramer, of Columbus, speaking for Defendants Stotter and Pardee. Mr. Kramer, a junior member of the Columbus law firm of Knepper, White and Dempsey, substituted for Attorney Peter Dempsey who was taken suddenly ill Tuesday night.

KNUDSEN FINDS DEFENSE PRODUCTION IMPROVING

General On Tour of U. S. Industrial Plants.

By The Associated Press

MILAN, Tenn., March 26—Declaring that "things are improving as they should" in the nation's war production, Lieut. Gen. William S. Knudsen, production chief of the war department, said in an interview here, that there is "nothing wrong with the 40-hour week . . . at present."

"In my opinion the 40-hour week has not slowed production in war industries," asserted Knudsen, hearing the end of an inspection tour of war factories which has taken him to more than a hundred plants in the past six weeks.

HAROLD COBB TO BE IN FERRY COMMAND

Former Airport Head Ends Service in Canada.

Harold Cobb, former Marion airport operator, has obtained his release from the Royal Canadian Air Force, in which he has been serving as a flying officer, and is in Marion for a short time before going to Baltimore to become civilian pilot in the army's ferry command.

Mr. Cobb was commissioned a flying officer in the R. C. A. F. Oct. 1, 1940. He has recently been engaged in navigation work and was stationed at Crumlin Airport near London, Ontario. He has been there since May 1, 1941. He received his release Sunday and arrived in Marion Tuesday.

He operated the Marion airport in 1940 until the time of his acceptance in the R. C. A. F. He is 30 years old. He said his new duties in the ferry command will probably call for flying all over the states.

Marion Man Writes for Hobby Magazine

Sid M. Pontius, Marion photographer, who lives at 280 Forest street, is the author of "Swords as a Hobby," an illustrated article appearing in the April issue of "Hobbies, the Magazine for Collectors."

The article is based on a talk given by Mr. Pontius about a year ago before the Marion Hobby club. It describes how he became interested in swords as a hobby and relates the history of swords.

26 Against the Axis: 20

King George II

GREECE—From April 6 to April 23, 1941, the headlines read like an assignment in ancient history. The Greeks were dying heroically at Struma Pass, they were holding at Thermopylae, they fought bravely on Mount Olympus, they dug in in Macedonia, they rallied at Thrace. History was repeating itself but this time brave men could only delay the invasion timetable; they could not halt with bravery alone columns of tanks, unbroken flights of dive bombers. They did a pretty good job of it when Little Greece (population 7,200,000) was fighting Italy (45,000,000), holding and driving back the Black Shirts from October, 1940, until Germany had to rescue Mussolini's thoroughly beaten and discredited army the following spring. Then the Greek government (independent since 1829) fled to Egypt and finally to London, where King George II heads it operation in exile. It was only a few years earlier — from 1925, when the National Assembly voted to overthrow the monarchy, until 1935 when a plebiscite returned the king to his throne—that he had been in exile without his government. A mountainous, agricultural country whose glory and power reached their peak in the fifth century B. C., Greece created for the rest of the world to marvel at and copy, a great culture, art, architecture, drama, poetry, sculpture, many schools of philosophic and scientific thought, mythology, democracy based on different values but in the same pattern as modern democracies; great military leaders (Alexander the Great) and strategy is still a required course for modern generals; great ruins for tourists to visit.

Development of New Housing Industry May Come from War

Government's Use of Prefabricated Houses Is Industry's Biggest Boost; Future Depends on Public.

By JAMES MARLOW
Wide World Writer

NEW YORK—The latest war baby, with a pat on the head from Uncle Sam, is growing up.

The government, seeking homes in a hurry for its enormously increasing army of war workers, within the past two months has let contracts for about 45,000 prefabricated, demountable houses costing about $150,000,000.

This was the greatest single boost the prefabricated house industry has ever had and immediately created the mass market it needed to grow up.

The industry had struggled for years that were full of talk, planning and but too much result to give prefabricated houses a place in the American scheme of things.

How great may become the need for housing for war workers may be understood from the prediction of Donald M. Nelson, war production board chief, who on March 20 said those engaged in war production now number between 3,000,000 and 10,000,000 and may soon reach 23,000,000.

The future of the industry, of course, may depend on how well the public likes these prefabricated houses that can be put together quickly and as quickly taken apart and moved somewhere else, thus eliminating the fear the country might be full of "ghost towns" when the war is over.

That the building industry has a bright future—whether of the old-fashioned kind or the new—has been forecast by Sumner H. Slichter, Harvard university economist, who said:

"The biggest opportunity for private enterprise to increase the volume of employment is in the development of attractive and cheap housing.

"The end of the war will see a substantial accumulation of the demand for housing—at any rate, in case the war lasts through 1943."

When the government contracts for the prefabricated houses were announced, "The Architectural Forum," a magazine, which "swore off the overworked comparison of house building and automobile manufacture," nevertheless felt impelled to say:

"The parallel between what is happening to the infant prefab industry in 1942 and what happened to the infant automobile industry in 1919, '17 and '18 is inescapable.

"World War I created a mass demand for cars and trucks which made possible the economies of mass production that in turn created a mass market for post-war sales.

"World War II is repeating the first part of this process. Wartime houses, may bring the second surely as the chicken follows the egg."

Although the order for 45,000 prefabricated houses is not large when compared with the total United States production of more than 600,000 houses last year, the magazine pointed out, the "figure is enormous when applied to present prefabricating facilities, and is bound to have enormous effects.

There are between 75 and 100 active prefabricators in this country and last year, according to "The Architectural Forum," they turned out about 20,000 "prefab" houses on government orders for defense areas.

It is expected that the demountable houses — one-story, basementless and with one, two or three bedrooms each—will be set up by general contractors under normal government procedure on a project-by-project basis.

"Wherever possible," the Forum said, "existing streets and utilities will be used; in most instances however it seems likely that projects will take the form of developments of 100 to 1,000 houses, with site planning and site engineering in the hands of local architects and engineers who will have considerable supervisory responsibility."

Norman Bel Geddes, who designed the futurama at the New York World's Fair, believes that 2,500,000 new housing units may be needed in the United States after the war, and must be produced in mass volume.

Geddes said that he has been working on designs for prefabricated houses that would cost only about $1,950 to turn out by mass production and would avoid standardization through permitting a number of variations in the interiors and exteriors.

Such a house, he said, could be entirely put together in an 8-hour day by a six-man crew so completely that if the units were delivered at the building site in the morning the owner could move in before night.

IN GOVERNOR RACE?

A prominent Kansas stockman and banker, Will H. Burke, above, has resigned as collector of internal revenue for Kansas. Friends expect him to enter the race for the Democratic nomination for governor or for the U. S. senate. Burke lives at Little River, Kan.

The Stars Say—

For Friday, March 27

This should be an auspicious time for pushing ahead on the strategies and subtle programs established the day before. This time with the cooperation of those whose aid is vital to major objectives. The situation is particularly favorable should the desire be in connection with community, public or group activities or in relation to diplomatic, political, fraternal or corporate bodies. It should be a time for pushing to such goals but without overenthusiasm.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of outstanding success and progress, with promotion, preferment and substantial support coming from those in place and power, who are won by novelty, originality, exceptional cleverness and well-organized strategies rather than by force, audacity, quarrels or litigation. Extravagance in outlay and conduct are not recommended.

A child born on this day should be able, ambitious for place, power and prestige, in which it will be supported from high places.

Couple Exchange Vows at Leonardsburg Church

Special to The Star

ASHLEY — Before an altar banked with cut flowers and potted plants in the Leonardsburg church Sunday Miss Dema Potter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Potter of Leonardsburg, and Walter Hendricks, son of Mrs. Florence Sethman of North Lima, were united in marriage. Organ selections were played by Mrs. Hubert Osborn. Miss Mary Potter, sister of the bride, and Don Potter, her brother, were the attendants. Rev. John Pfahler read the double ring ceremony.

Mrs. Hendricks graduated from Ohio State university and has a private pilot's license. She is employed as a draftsman in Berberton. Mr. Hendricks is a student in the engineering department at Ohio State university and also has a private pilot's license. A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. After a wedding trip Mr. Hendricks will return to Ohio State university and Mrs. Hendricks will resume her work at Barberton.

This May Be Last Easter Parade for the Duration

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — It may be the last gala springtime occasion for the duration, but this year's Easter parade promises to be the fanciest in history.

All reports received by the commerce department indicate that sales of Easter merchandise are running about a fourth larger than last year and far ahead of 1929.

On spring clothes, both for women and men, officials found stores generally had larger than usual stocks, with at least the customary profusion of fashions and colors. Silk stockings, first casualty of the war, apparently were the only important exception.

Despite sugar rationing, confectioners seemed prepared to furnish all the candy Easter eggs and other holiday sweets that tradition demands. Florists also were well prepared.

Easter vacations and visits may suffer a little this year, with so many people saving tires and gasoline, or just too busy with war work to get away.

The big supply of holiday merchandise was attributed to the fact that much of it was manufactured before Pearl Harbor.

But next year—the government looks for a more somber observance. One official suggested:

"Maybe next year, you'll have to ask Mr. Henderson (Leon Henderson, price administrator) before you do your Easter shopping."

Without predicting such an eventuality, he foresaw the possibility that clothing might be rationed and milady might want to count her rationing coupons pretty carefully before asking for a new bonnet. Style changes definitely will be under official frowns.

About the only bright spot in next year's prospectus is flowers. There appears to be no reason for a shortage of flowers or plants—unless the flower beds are turned into vegetable gardens.

Easter this year, fell on April 5.

War Gag

Someone called a Marion department store this week, asked for the men's department and inquired of the clerk:

"Got any of those Jap undershirts?"

The puzzled clerk said she hadn't, and what were they?

"The kind that creep up your back when you're not looking," was the snappy come-back.

Important Addresses

If you should happen to telephone The Star office to ask for the address of Johnny Jones or Billy Smith, in some branch of the military service, and the young woman who answers the phone politely but firmly refuses to give you the information, don't blame her.

She's only doing her patriotic duty.

You may know that Johnny or Billy is receiving The Star at camp, and it's only logical for you to think you might get his address from The Star.

However, saboteurs and espionage agents are making use of seemingly innocent means to get information they can pass along to this nation's enemies. Always valuable to them is information about the location of military units.

Suppose such an agent called The Star and obtained the address of a young man in service. The address would tell not only where that man is located but where his entire military unit is. Such bits of information assembled from over the country into the hands of an enemy agent might piece together a fairly complete picture of the location of our armed forces.

The young lady who refused to answer your telephone inquiry is thinking about all this when she tells you she is not permitted to disclose addresses. She'd like to have you understand her reasons for refusing because she doesn't want to displease you, although she knows it's difficult to refuse to answer a seemingly innocent inquiry.

She hopes you will understand that the information that might be divulged through such inquiries is so valuable to enemy agents that the American Newspaper Publishers association has taken cognizance of the danger and is asking all newspapers to use this and other means of preventing information leaks to foreign agents.

The Marion Star is cooperating 100 per cent in this precautionary program and has instructed its employes not to disclose, under any circumstances, the names and addresses of any member of the nation's armed forces.

Grandfather-Selectee

Arthur Ferriman, 36, of 208½ North Main street, is a grandfather, but he's going off to an army camp just the same.

Marion draft board clerks report that, to the best of their knowledge, Mr. Ferriman is the first selectee grandfather to be called from this district. He is scheduled to leave yet this month.

One board member points out that Mr. Ferriman may not enjoy such a singular distinction after the selective service officials get to work on the last group of registrants, whose ages range as high as 44 years. There are many such instances among the new registrants, he said. However, even then, many of the men may be called to service in vital occupational capacities instead of military duty.

Production of bone black, carbon black, and lampblack is a $15,000,000 a year industry in the United States, according to manufacturer's reports to the census.

SIX WORLD MARKS FALL IN NEW YORK RACES

Borican, Cochran Each Shatter Two Records As Seton Hall and Georgetown Quartets Win.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, March 26—A ball manager's pique helped create six world indoor track records last night and a pair of head colds kept Leslie MacMitchell and Greg Rice from erasing marks in the mile and two-mile runs, respectively.

Tex O'Rourke, manager of the coliseum, offered free use of his hall for a track meet after a coach, in an unguarded statement at the metropolitan college games in January, said that the Bronx nine-lap, oil-splattered boards weren't as "fast" as the 11-lap track in Madison Square Garden. More than 5,000 spectators came out to see the "debate."

Roy Cochran, formerly of Indiana university; John Borican of Asbury Park, N. J., the Seton Hall college two-mile relay team and the Georgetown university one-mile foursome gave plenty of proof that O'Rourke's ire was justified.

Cochran, now representing the Great Lakes Naval Training Station, opened the six-event program staged for the benefit of the Navy relief society by tearing through 440 yards in :48.2 to shave one and four-tenths seconds from the mark Thomas Halpin of Boston set in 1913.

Enroute, Cochran was clocked at the 400 meter post in :47.9 to rub out Halpin's mark of :49.6 there.

Borican also ran only one race but smashed two marks. He eliminated Lloyd Hahn's mark of 1:51.4 for the half mile with a 1:50.5 recording. He sailed by the 800-meter pole in 1:50 to erase Hahn's 1928 effort of 1:51.4 (CO).

Seton Hall college, putting on display one freshman and three upperclassmen, ran the fastest two-mile relay race on record. The Jersey four snapped the twine in 7:32.9 to wipe out their own mark of 7:39.2 and exceeded the outdoor record of 7:31.5 set by a University of California team last summer.

Georgetown got so far out in front in the one-mile relay that its runners weren't troubled by the jostling and shoving of the three rivals and carried the baton across the finished in 3:17.2, clipping six-tenths of a second from the University of Pennsylvania's 11-year-old record.

MacMitchell defeated Gil Dodds by six yards in a 4:07.8 mile although he ran with his head so stopped up with a cold he suffered a half hour nose-bleed after the race.

Rice's cold made it almost impossible for him to speak but he cantered 18 times around the oval in 8:52.9 to win by 99 yards.

COLUMBUS, O., March 26 — Harold Lloyd, the movie producer-comedian, bowled 421 in the American Bowling Congress tournament last night, but didn't feel so bad about his score.

Martin Unmacht of Dubuque, Ia., new president-designate of the ABC, knocked down only 303 pins in his three-game series. ABC contestants average better than 500.

Lloyd's games were 129, 131 and 164; Unmacht's 84, 98 and 121.

In contrast Glenn Chinn scored 181, 267, and 287 for 735, the best three-game total of the tournament so far, while bowling with the Fort Pitt Beers of Wooster, O. It was the second highest total amassed in the five-man event, being topped only by 708 bowled by Fred Weber of Milwaukee at the Peoria, Ill., tournament in 1934.

The Bowling Association of Bakersfield, Calif., took over third place in the five-man event with 3003 yesterday. The Acme Billiard Supply of Los Angeles moved into sixth with 2936. No important changes occurred in the other events.

Max Stein of Los Angeles, holder of the ABC all-events record of 2070, got 529 for the Warner Brothers team. He went into the doubles and singles today.

BOB GERBER HONORED AS W. VIRGINIA TEAM WINS GARDEN EVENT

Rocket Star Named on All-Tourney Team; Quinn Also.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, March 26—West Virginia, the team that was seeded last in the National Invitation Basketball tournament, today owned the championship, the most-valuable-player award and three places on the tourney's all-star squad.

The Mountaineers staged a sparkling second-half rally last night to down Western Kentucky State, 47-45, in the final game after having eliminated such stalwarts as defending champion Long Island university and high-scoring Toledo university.

Western Kentucky, seeded only a notch above West Virginia in the starting field of eight, upset City College of New York and Creighton university to gain the finals.

Creighton wound up with third prize in the annual meet by dumping Toledo, 48-46, in the opener of last night's double-header at Madison Square Garden.

West Virginia dropped three free throws through the hoop in the last 45 seconds of play to cap a thrilling rally that Western Kentucky almost matched.

Rudy Baric of West Virginia was voted the tournament's most valuable player. Dick Kesling and Scotty Hamilton, also of West Virginia, were named to the tournament all-star squad which will play a second corps area army all-star team in an army emergency relief game at the Garden Saturday night.

Long Island university and City College, top teams of the season in metropolitan basketball and seeded first and third, respectively, in the tournament, will meet in the other game of the double-header.

Bart Quinn and Bob Gerber of Toledo also were named on the all-tourney squad.

SAN HERNARDINO, Calif.—Ralph Kiner, 20-year-old pitching rookie with the Pittsburgh Pirates, is a major league humorist even if he is slated to go back to the minors next month.

SIMON SETS SIGHTS ON LOUIS' TUMMY

Confident Pug Believes in Army Adage.

By The Associated Press

SUMMIT, N. J. — An army travels on its stomach, and since Joe Louis is in the army, Abe Simon's battle plan for Friday night's fuss in Madison Square Garden is to bang away at Joe's tummy to see how far it can travel.

Large Abie gave the tip-off on this stunt as he wound up training for the 15-round rowdy-de-dow for the army emergency relief benefit. Simply, he plans to charge the Bomber into the ropes right from the word go and work on that mid-section until something happens.

At least, Abie is going into the ring with that idea in mind. What Joe will do about it is a horse from a different garage altogether. Joe's funny that way.

But that isn't worrying the Long Island dreadnaught a bit, because Simon predicted flatly today that Simon would win.

"And what's more," he added for the benefit of a gasping audience, "If the opportunity presents itself, I'll even knock Joe out."

This is like saying you'd take the U. S. mint if someone handed it over on a platter. In things like the mint and Joe's heavyweight championship, opportunity usually doesn't even knock one little tiny knock.

But Abe is confident. He doesn't see what can keep him from whipping the Bomber, although he was stopped in 13 rounds by Joe a year ago.

NEW YORK, March 26—Future Book: Bob Pastor and Jimmy Bivins definitely will get together on Cleveland's next big fight card in mid-April... Chicago Stadium is planning a navy relief basketball show with Great Lakes taking on the winner of the N.C.A.A. title game between Stanford and Dartmouth. Centralia (Ill.) High may give Dwight Eddleman, the Bill DeCorrevont of basketball, a showing on the same card. Jack Joyner, U. of Tennessee publicist, has written Lt. Good idea, Jack, but how about declaring the other service funds in?

Double Main-Go Arranged for Armory Wrestling Show

Flash Clifford and Joe Maish Meet in Prelm Tonight at 8:30.

The all-star mat card Promoter Les Fishbaugh has arranged for the Armory tonight gives rise to the vague possibility that Marion followers may witness equal portions of scientific, methodical grappling as well as the fast, snappy grunt-groan, style usually linked with strong-man shows.

In a recent letter Fishbaugh stated that he had signed a pair of bouts, each equally as good as the other, and for that reason he decided to stage a double main-go card. Principals for the first event, the best two out of three falls over a 30-minute route, are Percy Cisel of Kansas and the veteran escape artist, The Bat Cisel, opponent from the local ring scene has humiliating foe to Farmer Jones a few weeks back is equally as rough and rough, for that matter, as The Bat. Last week The Bat managed to score a long victory over Steve Nenoff, much to the disgust of a heated audience.

STEVE NENOFF

In the other end of the double feature the ever-popular Nenoff will collide with Nick B Lure, the rib-digging Greek Billy... won his first major ring victory here last week in a battle royal feature, pinning rookie Joe Maish twice in three attempts. The pair were participants in the six-man gang fight and ousted Flash Clifford, The Bat, Steve Nenoff and Joe Perone to win the right to fight in the main-go.

Joe Maish and Flash Clifford return here this week to meet in the half-hour preliminary with one fall for a decision. This first, starting at 8:30 will open the star studded card.

Promoter Fishbaugh recently said he planned to sign Lefty Pacer for the officiating duties.

LACK OF HARD HITTERS LIKELY TO STYMIE REDS

By The Associated Press

TAMPA, Fla.—Unless they can talk somebody out of a 300 hitting outfielder very soon now, the Cincinnati Reds will have to start another season under the same old blight—insufficient hitting to back up the finest pitching staff in baseball, possibly barring that of the Chicago White Sox.

Nobody can accuse General Manager Warren Giles of not having tried, even though Cincinnati fans are reported becoming very restless about outfielders to stock a farm system. They practically need a revolving door on Crosley Field to take care of the hungry horde. Yet the Reds are as far from having a big league outfield now as they ever were. There is a gloomy training camp this spring.

To give an idea of the situation: the team's star outfielder is Mike McCormick. At least he is the only man sure of his job. And while Mike is an exceptionally gifted fly-chaser, he batted .285 last season and drove in only 28 runs.

Regard, too the other holdovers from last year, with their batting averages: Harry Craft, .249; Jim Gleason, .283; Ival Goodman, .268; Ernie Koy, .241. That tells the unhappy story of the Reds, and explains why they scarcely can be expected to finish higher than third in the National league again this season. Their only hope lies in the possibility that Hank Sauer, who clouted .330 for Birmingham last year and drove in 114 runs, will do somewhere near that well against big league pitching.

"Just how," asked Giles perplexedly, "do they expect me to produce the sort of slugger we need—one that can hit maybe 330 and really lead our attack?"

"Look around the National league and see how many outfielders there are of that calibre. To be exact there is one—Pete Riser of Brooklyn — and you couldn't make Larry MacPhail turn him loose with blasting powder. Maybe the Cardinals have a man or two who might solve our problem, but did you ever hear of them parting with anything good? No, and you never will."

So Giles in his desperate effort to get batting strength while his pitching staff still is hot as a pistol, has been forced to take a chance on almost any outfielder put on the market. At the moment there is reason to believe he could obtain Joe Medwick from Brooklyn, but he would have to give up one of his top pitchers—probably Elmer Riddle — and there is no assurance that Joe would help the Reds. It is a mean problem.

The team probably lost some in field strength when third baseman Bill Werber was sold to the Giants. Neither Bert Haas from Columbus, who has been giving the job a battle all spring, or Chuck Aleno, whom most observers expect to win it when his sore arm fully recovers, look quite like Werber. Haas has, however, been hitting some long balls.

Eddie Joost, with an additional 20 pounds on his frame, is playing the best shortstop of his career and Lonnie Frey is the same dependable second sacker, but big Frank McCormick hasn't got going at all. He isn't hitting, and it threatens to affect his usually brilliant fielding around first.

Nothing much need be said about a pitching corps that includes Buck Walters, Paul Derringer, Elmer Riddle, John Vander Meer, Gene Thompson, Whitey Moore and a few others. But McKechnie's only problem, as usual, will be which one to start. Walters hasn't looked quite up to par in a couple of games, but he says it's only because his control is a faint bit off. He thinks he will be okay in a week or so.

The team can count on good catching from the veteran Rollie Hemsley, but it already is missing the occasional long lick that Ernie Lombardi used to hit.

Equal to Hogan's record for con[illegible] the critics saw Wood [illegible] as having the best [illegible] to come from behind in [illegible] open scramble.

Nelson played all but perfect golf along the fairways yesterday, hitting every green but one. He had an amazing 35 putts and still came up with a two-under par 70. Given a few breaks on the greens, that kind of golf will return him to the championship he won here in 1939.

Wood's chances are supported by his two fine 69 rounds. He ripped the back out of the cup with his putts yesterday but they wouldn't stay on the last nine holes and he skied to a 37 after an outgoing 32.

NEW COMMISSION MEMBER

When the Ohio Conservation and Natural Resources Commission meets for its March meeting it will have a new member, Leroy Ballinger of Cincinnati.

Ballinger was appointed by Governor John W. Bricker to succeed Walter F. Kirk of Port Clinton, who died following an automobile accident. The term of Ballinger starts immediately and continues until 1950.

President of Ballinger & Co., Cincinnati, Ballinger is well known in Ohio sportsmen's circles and for many years has owned and operated a large farm in Clermont County, near Chilo. He is a director of the City Farmers club and a member of the Ohio Valley Beagle club. He is chairman of Selective Service Board No. 4 in Hamilton county.

USEFUL PUBLICATION

The Ohio Division of Conservation and Natural Resources receives many requests for various publications, including the Ohio Conservation Bulletin, from all parts of the world in spite of the fact that war has enveloped almost the entire earth.

The latest request is for the Division's bulletin "Dams on Streams and Runs" which came from Chester A. Price, in charge of the Rio Piedras area for the Department of Agriculture in Puerto Rico. Mr. Price pointed out that he had seen one of the bulletins and felt it would be a valuable aid in planning farm conservation plans in Puerto Rico.

A BREAK FOR WILDLIFE

Slower driving speeds caused by tire rationing may result in saving some wild animals and birds in Ohio, officials of the Ohio Conservation and Natural Resources Division predicted today.

Game protectors and other field men in making their rounds have frequently remarked on the heavy toll automobiles take on wildlife on the highways. Among animals found frequently along the roads are rabbits, opossums, squirrels, skunks, pheasants, quail, and raccoon.

More animals are killed during March than any other month. At this time of year food is scarce and they must travel farther in search of it, thus causing a greater number to cross the roads.

Most of the rabbits and other animals are killed at night when they are blinded by lights of approaching automobiles. However, if lights are dimmed for an instant the animal can escape to the side of the road. Sudden swerving of a car to miss an animal may cause a serious accident, but dimming of lights by alert drivers will help to save wildlife.

CLEVELAND SHOW

Exhibits of the Ohio Division of Conservation and Natural Resources will be one of the features of the American and Canadian Sportsmen's show at the Public Auditorium, Cleveland, March 21 to 29.

Exhibits include animals, birds and fish and panel displays. Newest feature will be a sports and conservation quiz booth. Wildlife will include a raccoon family, three large aquariums of native Ohio game and forage fish, an eagle, a number of great horned owls and a deer.

There will also be habitat cases of partridges, pheasants, mallards, gray squirrels and fish. Panel displays include: law enforcement panel, public relations panel, how the sportsman's dollar is spent panel, highway mortality panel and squirrel and 'coon dens.

MARKET FEELS BUYING CHILL

Interest Is Retarded by Tax, Price Control, Profit Limits and Other Fears.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, March 26—Renewed weakness of some blue chips tended to chill buying sentiment in today's stock market.

Fears of taxes, price controls, priorities and possible drastic profits limitations for corporations received the principal blame for the further waning of the bullish urge. Nothing much was discerned in the war bulletins to stir the bidding pulse.

Soft spots in the stock division included Norfolk & Western, American Telephone and Chesapeake & Ohio, all of which posted new year's lows. Behind most of the time were General Motors, Chrysler, Bethlehem, Woolworth, Douglas Aircraft, Eastman Kodak and Westinghouse.

Occasional resistance was shown by Santa Fe, Du Pont, Boeing and Standard Oil (N.J.).

Financial quarters derived some encouragement from the action of the President in issuing an executive order whereby the war and navy departments and the maritime commission may guarantee or make loans to small business firms and sub-contractors as a means of speeding war production.

GRAIN PRICES RALLY AFTER EARLY SLUMP

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, March 26—After wheat, rye and soybeans prices slumped almost a cent, selling at or near 1942 lows, the grain market about-faced today and, in a brisk rally, chalked up corresponding net gains.

Wheat was strengthened by reports of wind and bug damage in some localities in the southwest and by moderate buying of mills and diminished receipts at principal interior terminals. Corn support was based on evidence of large country feeding demand and commercial use as well as disclosure that government-owned stocks had been reduced to about 81,500,000 bushels at the end of last month compared with 240,000,000 bushels a year ago.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

Nearing Diswell's Mountain Home, Madge Conceives Idea of Hiding Armored Car in Underbrush.

"THEN," I interrupted Gus ruthlessly, "you men were right. Those men in the car that passed us are also hunting Professor Diswell's house, and it's fairly certain that they know who you are. We mustn't wait another minute to start again. Joe must have the directions by this time."

"We've got plenty of time," Gus said, surprisingly. "Please listen, Missis Graham. It seems this Jim, he knows the old prof, and he didn't think it would be so good to let those babies find him before he got over there first.

"So he told them, sure, he knew. He told them to go to Cornwall bridge first, and then he directed them a roundabout way, and he didn't give them the last three miles to the old fellow's house at all.

"They'll have to do a lot of inquiring, he says, and it will take them quite a spell to find it.

"As soon as he could get away he beat it back here to Warren, and he wanted to get a couple of men to go with him to the old prof's house. I didn't know—I thought maybe, you'd—"

His voice trailed off into silence, and I made a quick decision. But first I put a question.

"How many know of this?" I asked.

"Only the storekeeper and his father," Gus replied promptly. "The storekeeper told me that, I guess, so I wouldn't worry. There's been nobody in the store since this man Jim Watson came in. The storekeeper, Mr. Branchman, told Watson he'd go with him."

"They are going over there anyway?" I asked.

"Yes, they are," he answered.

Find New Allies

"Then ask them please to lead the way. But first, ask them when we get near the house, if there isn't some side road around, so that without losing too much time, we could come up to it from the opposite direction to the one which the gangsters will take. But ask them to hurry."

"Okay!" Gus was on his feet at the word, and making his way hurriedly to the front of the car. In a few seconds he and Joe came back, and I heard another car starting just before Joe sent ours into the road. I caught a glimpse of the two men in it, one a magnificently built giant, the other shorter and not so heavy, but looking as if he possessed powerful muscles. Then their car was speeding along the broad road into which we had come—one of the main Connecticut highways—at a pace which I think even Joe approved.

Gus came back to me, and I heard Joe speaking crisply to Bill.

"You keep an eye on those birds in front. I want to see where they turn. I'll see 'em all right, at it won't do no hurt for you to check 'em."

"I'll check," Bill replied horsedly, and then we hurtled down the highway at frightening speed.

It was less than five minutes by my wrist watch, upon which my eyes were glued, before I heard Bill's voice.

"They're putting out a hand and slowing up a bit. They must be going to turn at the next corner."

Joe immediately slackened the pace of the big car, and in a trice we were rounding a corner and traveling along a graveled road. After a quarter of a mile this became a rough, rutted wood road, which drew a groaning expletive from Joe.

Near Destination

"I can't go fast along this," he said woefully, sending our car along at a brisk pace, nevertheless. "And that other car is slowing down. Well"—with a patent decision to be philosophical—"from what that man at the store said, we're only two or three miles from the place. But they're going to go a mile and a half around, so as to come at it from the other side. So I guess there's only one thing to do, and that is to follow that other fellow and go as fast or as slow as he does."

Knowing that I was free from observation now, I raised myself on my elbow and saw that we were traveling on a steadily ascending road, so dimmed that the trees and underbrush seemed to wall the car in. If we should meet a car, one driver or the other would have to back until he found a place wide enough for passing.

With a realization of how this terrain would help us, I spoke softly to Gus:

"Won't it be possible to hide these cars in the underbrush when we get near the house?"

New Aids in Diagnosis

A practical-minded fellow columnist of mine has written an article on the "upside down periscope" that surgeons are using. This refers to a new and very valuable method of diagnosis which has come into use in the last few years.

The instrument is called a peritoneoscope. It is modeled on a number of instruments that have been used for diagnosis, such as the cystoscope and the otoscope. The principle of all these instruments is a thin tube, in the end of which is an electric light, and an arrangement of a series of mirrors, which it is true is not unlike the periscope. In other words—it is all done with mirrors.

The peritoneoscope has saved many a patient from an abdominal operation, and in skilled hands is a very reliable and accurate instrument in the diagnosis of abdominal diseases.

The physician who is trying to make a diagnosis of a disease of the abdomen is up against a rather tough job. He has a sort of sack made up of skin, muscle and fat, inside of which are a number of organs which are subject to an infinite number of disorders.

To name a few: there is the liver, the spleen, the stomach, the appendix, the intestines, the kidneys and the pancreas. The patient can point to the place where there is some pain and the doctor can occasionally feel tenderness or a lump, but the diagnosis is a good deal like handing a man a large paper bag full of oranges, apples, grapefruit and nuts and asking him exactly what is inside the bag.

The X-ray provived a great improvement in our methods of diagnosis of abdominal disease. With the X-ray we can outline the stomach, the intestine, the gall bladder and sometimes the kidneys and stones.

The peritoneoscope goes a step further and helps us a little bit more. A small incision is made in the abdomen with local anaesthesia and the metal tube with the electric light is put inside the peritoneum.

Like a periscope it is then rotated around so that a number of organs come into view well illuminated. It is sort of like an exploratory surgical operation on the abdomen. In a number of cases, as I say, it gives a positive result and prevents an unnecessary surgical operation, or confirms the necessity for a surgical operation.

Its use is becoming quite common and nearly any city of any size in the United States has one or more hospitals where there can be found a physician with experience in this line of work.

From a large clinic it is reported that with the aid of the peritoneoscope, the diagnosis of abdominal diseases is 90% accurate as compared to 50% accurate under the usual diagnostic methods.
